

HOUSE VOTES FOR OPA EXTENSION

MOST PRICES
BEING HELD AT
OPA LEVELSSOME RENTS RAISED
AS HIGH AS 33
PER CENT

(By The Associated Press)

The nation's retailers—despite lifting of government controls—generally held prices at OPA levels yesterday (Monday) in the face of near record-high quotations in cattle and hog markets, grain, cotton and wool.

Industrial stocks on the New York exchange rose sharply in the morning but extreme advances were reduced ultimately and a number of losers appeared at the close.

Rents advanced 15 to 33 1/2 per cent in many places and soared out of sight in a few in the first 24 hours of freedom from four-year-old federal ceilings.

Prospects for early congressional action to restore some system of price control remained dim. The House voted a 20-day stopgap extension of OPA but the Senate leadership decided to seek long-range legislation instead. The action left price controls dead in the interim, but moves were under way in both houses to restore rent control.

Chloroform For State Aid

A rising clamor for emergency state legislation was heard in some sectors, especially where rents shot up sharply.

Most disturbing to hold-the-line adherents were market trends such as $20 hogs at Indianapolis—highest in 27 years, the first two dollar wheat since 1925 at Chicago and an all time $22 high for cattle compared to last week's $18 OPA ceiling.

Such increases would be reflected almost immediately in the retail price of meat and food under normal conditions, economists said.

Similar advances were scored in wool and cotton futures, certain to be translated in increased clothing prices if the trend continues.

The Western States Meat Packers Association, claiming 90 per cent of the business done by independent packers in nine western states, announced that prices would be raised today (Tuesday) an average of 20 per cent above ceiling prices on all grades of meat. E. F. Forbes, president of the association, said prices for top grades would go up 30 per cent.

The first reports of increases following OPA's Sunday midnight demise came in rents and milk. In the east, few cities reported sufficient meat supplies to detect any rising price trend but further west, at Phoenix, Ariz., for instance, one meat wholesaler announced a 25 per cent hike except on luncheon meats which were boosted 10 per cent.

Fresh beef was up 5 and 10 cents a pound in Chicago.

FREEZE RENTS

Trenton, N. J., July 1 (AP)—Acting Governor Haydn Proctor today issued an executive order freezing rents in New Jersey for a 30-day period.

Montgomery, Ala., July 1 (AP)—Gov. Chauncey Sparks, acting under a 1943 war powers act, today froze all rents in Alabama that had been subject to OPA control at the levels existing on June 30.

Fresh fruits and vegetables, some of them early and out-of-season, registered slight gains at scattered points—Portland, Ore., Boston, Columbus, O., Washington, D. C., among others.

Restaurant prices were steady except in a few cases where fancy items heretofore forbidden by OPA ceilings reappeared on

Reds Accept Trieste
Control Plan; British,
U.S. Ask Study Time

BY JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, July 1 (AP)—Russia accepted a French compromise proposal tonight to place Trieste under an international control council but settlement of the big issue was held up when the United States and Britain asked for further time to study the plan.

The ministers also failed to reach a decision on the U. S. proposal for convening immediately a 21-nation peace conference.

Both U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin promised an answer tomorrow on Trieste.

Reports of angry mobs clashing again in the streets of Trieste reached Paris while the foreign ministers were in conference and underlined the necessity for early settlement of the issue which has been the principal stumbling block in drafting peace treaties for the Balkans since last fall.

Both Trieste and Byrnes' proposal for a European peace conference to be held this month were on today's agenda. But it was announced when the ministers filed

Price Control Is Needed In Housing
Drive, Wyatt Says

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Home building has hit its highest rate since booming 1925 but the housing drive will miss its goal unless price control is saved, Wilson Wyatt declared tonight.

Lacking OPA's control over building materials prices, the National Housing Administrator said in a broadcast, "we cannot start 1,700,000 homes and apartments in 1946."

"Without controls it is equally certain that we cannot build homes and apartments that veterans can afford."

Earlier, in his first formal report as housing expediter, Wyatt revealed that 406,000 dwellings had been started this year 34 per cent of the 1946 goal.

Unless congress restores price controls, building materials will climb 20 per cent in price he said tonight and inflation would "doom the veterans emergency housing program in its present form."

"It would place home builders squarely on the spot. They would be caught between the devil of high prices they cannot avoid and the deep blue sea of a buyers' strike."

"If the country abandons price controls it also abandons its fight against inflation. It abandons the veterans housing program. It starts us on the road to a boom and a bust, not only in housing but in the whole economy."

The report, prepared before the price control act expired last night, was cheerily confident in tone.

Mother Dies As
Blind Son Prepares
For Eye Operation

Verona, Pa., July 1 (AP)—Next Tuesday, just as planned, 16-year-old Jack Wisnowski will go to New York for the eye operation, that may restore fully the sight he lost four years ago—but he will go alone.

His frail, patient mother, Mrs. Marie Wisnowski, 42, died today as she bent over an ironing board, preparing Jackie's clothes for the trip.

Jackie, when he found his mother crumpled on the floor, forgot the warnings of his doctor and shed the tears he could not hold back. Now, physicians fear the transplantation of a cornea to his right eye may be delayed at least eight months.

The first sight Jackie wanted to see following his last operation which restored 90 percent sight to his left eye, was "his mother's face."

Her last words were: "Be sure to have your operation, son, no matter what happens."

CONTROL PLAN
OF ATOM BOMB
IS OUTLINEDBASIS FOR TALKS
IS LAID BEFORE
COMMITTEE

BY LARRY HAUCK

New York, July 1 (AP)—Six propositions on which a charter for controlling atomic energy might be built were laid before a special subcommittee of the United Nations atomic energy commission at its first closed meeting today by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia.

Evatt, chairman of the atomic energy commission announced this morning that the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France, Mexico and Australia would make up the subcommittee. He called a meeting immediately and placed the following propositions before the subcommittee for bases of discussion and recommendations:

"1. There should be a single international instrument embodying:

(A) A comprehensive plan for international control and development of atomic energy.

(B) An international atomic energy authority to administer and carry out the plan and to be vested with wide discretionary powers.

(C) As part of the plan there should be undertakings by member nations not to use atomic energy for purposes of war.

(D) Several parts of the plan should come into effective operation under terms and conditions which are just and equitable, having regard to the overriding purpose of the plan.

"2. For purposes of carrying out the plan an international authority should be vested with all necessary rights relevant to raw materials, processes, plans, and products of plants.

"3. That effective systems should be established for preventing breaches of the agreed restrictions and controls.

"4. The international authority shall be required to promote and carry out plans for development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

"5. That scientific information on nuclear processes and their application to peaceful purposes should be exchanged, care being taken at each stage not to prejudice the effectiveness of the agreed safeguards against misuse. Such exchange of information should take place by an interchange of personnel and through open publication.

"6. That the general plan should provide that at times and under conditions to be fixed by the international authority, the manufacture of atomic bombs should cease and all existing bombs should be dismantled."

Evatt was named chairman of the sub-committee. He announced it would meet again in private tomorrow.

Present at the closed meeting besides Evatt were Andrei A.

Rent Controls

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Chesler Bowles, retiring economic stabilizer, today called upon governors of 47 states to use emergency powers to freeze rents at June 30 OPA levels.

Telegrams went to the governors of all states except New York, where a state rent control measure is in effect.

Declaring he still has "real hopes that firm controls over prices and rents will be put back in short order," Bowles said:

"As a stop gap, I respectfully suggest that you exercise such emergency powers as you have, or move to secure the speedy enactment of emergency legislation, if necessary, to freeze rents at June 30 OPA ceilings and maintain safeguards against unwarranted evictions until federal action can be taken."

No Casualties At
Bikini; First Bomb
Test Inconclusive

BY DON WHITEHEAD

Aboard the U.S.S. Appalachian off Bikini, Tuesday, July 2 (AP)—The atomic bomb—its wrath pitted against a naval fleet for the first time—sank five of Bikini's target array of 73 ships, wrecked six, damaged 25 and possibly damaged every other of the remaining vessels, official and unofficial surveys showed today.

Latest vessel to succumb to the smashing power of the bomb was the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, which sank quietly at its mooring this morning. It was under completely within 10 minutes after the stern started down.

However, not a capital ship was sunk by Monday's atomic blast—man's fourth such experiment—and goats chewed calmly on hay at the rim of the target fleet as the first observer craft poked into the lagoon three hours later.

But the havoc wrought by the terrifying power of the bomb was evident at every hand. Fires raged aboard at least eight of the vessels, including one ship two miles from the target center.

Flash Outshines Sun

One big warship, the battle-scarred light carrier Independence, was wrapped in smoke and convulsed by internal explosions of ammunition and gasoline, touched off six hours after the bomb let go in a blinding flash of light that outshone the sun.

Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy, task force commander, told a press conference that despite the damage there was no reason to conclude the day of the carrier and the destroyer was done.

Blandy declared that while the fire-swept Independence was "not a carrier any more" with its flight deck destroyed and its bridge structure over the side, he said he had seen ships that were damaged worse by raiders of the Kamikaze—the Japanese suicide pilots.

He predicted it would require months to assess the full facts of the test.

Radiocactivity prevented inspection crews from boarding ships in the center of the target. Blandy said a cursory inspection had been made of less than a dozen ships on the fringe of the fleet.

While many a watcher styled the test a disappointing spectacle, the fact remained that the bomb had hit.

His name is among the 8,919 newcomers to the most comprehensive issue of the book since it first was published in 1899. Explaining the addition, the publishers said that several years ago they began "sketching foreigners who were so well known in this country as to make them of American reference interest."

Nine-year-old actress Margaret O'Brien became the youngest entry to a Who's Who edition since Shirley Temple was taken in at the age of seven several years ago, the publishers said. They also called attention to this "probable first," a score for the entertainers of film and radio:

Betty Grable and Harry James have the distinction of being the first husband and wife to "crash" the book at the same time. Other couples appear in this and previous editions, the publishers pointed out, but they didn't break through in a tie.

Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines company, added seven lines to the 148 under his name in the previous issue to hold his position of the longest biography, while Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president emeritus of Columbia University, subject of the second longest sketch, also added seven lines to the 128 he had in the preceding volume.

ARRESTS OF
JEWS CONTINUEPalestine Government
Jails 2,700 In Raids

BY CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, July 1 (AP)—The Palestine government announced tonight that during its sweeping security raids of the past three days, 2,659 Jewish men and 59 women had been arrested in an effort to stamp out disorders that have gripped the Holy Land for the past two weeks.

British troops and police, an official communiqué said, searched 25 Jewish settlements throughout Palestine, in addition to Jewish-owned buildings in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Haifa. During the week-end operations, four Jews were killed and 30 were injured while resisting the searches, the government said.

Ammunition Found

The only appreciable amount of munitions found during the raids, the Army said tonight, was a cache so large that "it is not yet possible to count, even estimate, the amount of ammunition and arms it contains." The cache was discovered today in an underground chamber of Mesheq Yagur, a Jewish settlement near Haifa.

The announcement came as an uneasy quiet settled over most of Palestine and as Zionist leaders—both conservative and radical—urged Jews to remain calm in the face of mass British arrests until a course of action is plotted by Jewish officials.

The munitions dump was so large, the Army said, that it had an overhead trolley for conveying ammunition. The hoard included "many thousand rounds (of ammunition) of various types plus hundreds of grenades, detonators,

BUT SENATE
MOVE DELAYS
EXTENSIONNO PRICE CONTROL
UNTIL AGREEMENT
IS MADE

Washington, July 1 (AP)—An extension of the OPA until July 20 was voted overwhelmingly tonight by the House but the Senate leadership decided not to go along with that method of reviving price controls.

This Senate-House difference meant that price controls, which expired Sunday midnight, will remain dead until the two branches can agree on new extension legislation.

There was a possibility that rent controls may be re-established quickly.

Senator Byrd (D-Va) introduced a measure to restore rent control immediately for another year, saying "we ought to get started on retaining these controls while we fight out the question of price control. A group of Republicans drafted a similar house bill. Stabilization Director Chester Bowles at the same time telegraphed governors suggesting state action on rent control 'until federal action can be taken.' Governors already had acted in Alabama, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

The House passed the stopgap bill which would continue the now-dead price control for 20 days by a vote of 283 to 61, intending it to serve until congress can whip into shape a long range bill.

But in the face of senate opposition, Democratic leader Barkley (D-Ky) decided not to bring it to a vote, as such. Instead, the House measure will go to the Senate banking committee to be overhauled into a new one-year extension—with as few as possible of the amendments which led President Truman to veto the original extension bill.

No Brake On Prices

This will leave the country without a statutory brake on prices for as long as it takes congress to act, but with officials hoping that voluntary restraints evident today will be continued.

Price Administrator Paul Porter expressed the belief that the price line could be held by voluntary action for two or three weeks. He also voiced confidence that "we will get the kind of price control that meets the specifications laid down by the President."

House debate on the stopgap extension brought a prediction from Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the banking committee that "a great catastrophe will come to the American people" unless price controls are revived. On the other hand Rep. Allen (R-Ill) asserted there can be "no compromise" unless congress "completely abdicates, completely surrenders to the bureaucratic administrators of the OPA."

A chorus of boos greeted Allen from the visitors' gallery. Speaker Rayburn sternly ordered them hushed.

Proposals by Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill) to make the temporary extension only 10 days and by Rep. Smith (D-Va) to make it 60 days were defeated.

A move by Rep. Baldwin (R-NY) to continue the old law unchanged until Jan. 20, allowing the new congress to deal with the

RENTERS MAY ASK KELLY AID

Strikes Proposed To Combat Rising Prices

(By The Associated Press) Michigan warily watched changing price scales Monday in its readjustment to doing business without the OPA.

Rents appeared to cause main concern, rising in some isolated instances in Detroit as much as a reported 300 per cent.

As a result, there were two appeals to Governor Kelly for an executive order freezing rents or a special session of the legislature for the same purpose.

These came from the United Auto Workers Union, which proposed a renters' strike as a counter move, and a Detroit consumers group.

The auto union sought a meeting with Governor Kelly Tuesday. The union, which also suggested a buyers' strike, was called on by a group of local presidents in Flint to revise wage policy and demand pay boost from industry.

Kelly said at Lansing he would await clarification of congress attitude on an extension of OPA before he would decide whether to seek controls under state law.

The state of food prices remained uncertain. One meat wholesaler was reported to have raised his beef prices 100 per cent. On the whole, however, merchants were selling close to OPA ceilings.

Watch Closely Trade experts said it was difficult to judge the future from conditions of the first day of freedom from government price controls.

The situation made the housewife a watchful waiter, intent on her grocer's next moves, and did the same to the individual merchant who kept an eye on competitors.

Like Governor Kelly, the heads of many organized merchant groups pleaded for restraint on the part of both buyer and seller.

Kelly, making an appeal for the people to carry on a "personal battle" against inflation, said in a public statement: "We must not let the mirage of immediate personal advantages lure us from the road to a stable and prosperous state and nation."

Rents in congested Detroit soared as high as 300 per cent. A consumers group urged Governor Kelly to execute an order freezing rents or to call a special legislative session to enact a rent control law.

At the same time organized landlords said they were trying to keep rents on a reasonable basis. It was predicted generally that rents were certain to rise 20 to 30 per cent.

An OPA spokesman said a "greater inflow" of rent increase complaints was expected today (Tuesday) when notices will be delivered by mail.

on sheets from the same tablet above it—today showed the names of five students who were living in the same residence hall as Heirens at the time of the kidnapping.

The names of a restaurant in the vicinity and several phone numbers were also revealed in the "hidden writing."

Repeats Misspellings When Heirens was asked to write the ransom note, from dictation and without instructions as to how it should be inscribed, he misspelled the words "wait" and "safety." Tuohy said. He added that Heirens spelled the words "waiter" and "safety," exactly as they had been spelled on the ransom note.

Heirens has been interrogated repeatedly since Saturday when State's Attorney William J. Tuohy announced fingerprint examination satisfied him that Heirens was "the man" hunted since Jan. 7 when six year old Suzanne was snatched from her crib, slain, dismembered and buried in sewers near her north side home.

The prosecutor said, however, "at no time did he make a confession, either of the Degnan case or any other crime of which he was accused, except that of last Wednesday in which he was caught."

On Wednesday the University of Chicago student was caught prowling about a north side apartment building and was subdued when a policeman floored him with a blowpistol. He has been in the Bridewell hospital since.

matter after the elections, also lost.

Voluntary Control May Last

Western congressmen moved to save from the OPA wreckage the program by which the government subsidizes production of critical metals from mines with high operating costs. Two identical bills to transfer this program to the reconstruction finance corporation and continue it were introduced in the senate by Senators Hayden (D-Ariz.), Murray (D-Mont.) and McFarland (D-Ariz.) and in the house by Reps. Bunker (D-New), Harless (D-Ariz.) and Murdock (D-Ariz.)

The CIO, through its legislative council, Nathan E. Cowan, called on all its member organizations to "organize mass citizens protests against the loss of price control and to channel demands for action to Washington."

An uncertain nation meanwhile still standing by common consent despite the lapse of the law. Price Administrator Paul Porter expressed the view that they will continue to stand for two or three weeks.

Merchants for the most part retained the prices which the ceilings had imposed. Most of what broke there was in the field of rents. Stocks and commodities swung upward on the exchanges but late selling for profits reduced or wiped out security gains. Speculators were cautious in view of possible action by congress.

As the congressmen moved to tackle the problem posed by President Truman's veto of the original extension bill Saturday and the consequent death of legal price control Sunday midnight, they were bombarded by thousands of telegrams and letters from the public on both sides of the issue.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach urged management and labor to "avoid hasty action in this period." He told a news conference that "as a practical matter it is now impossible for either management or labor to attempt to negotiate wage agreements if such agreements contemplate a relationship with the cost of living."

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) issued a statement calling upon businessmen and landlords to hold down prices in what he termed "the critical test and the golden opportunity for free enterprise and state and local rights." He added that it will depend upon them "whether we continue to operate as free entrepreneurs."

"If OPA stays dead, there will not be any sky-rocketing of rents," Boyd Barnard, president of the national association of real estate boards, said in a statement here.

He reported that the association after a check-up in various parts of the country believes there will be "no immediate across-the-board increase; that within the 12 month period any increase might go up to 10 percent."

He said real estate boards will sponsor local fair rent committees where they are needed.

explosives and other sabotage material." Also found in the main cache were a large number of rifles and small arms. Apart from the main dump, the announcement said, there were "15 subsidiary caches discovered in various parts of the settlement, all containing arms."

Jewish Council Meets The Mashed Yagur settlement, one of a number of Jewish cooperative colonies founded in the Haila Bay area in the last decade, was the only place searched for arms today, the British announced.

While the search was in progress, an emergency meeting in Jerusalem of members of the Jewish National Council and other community leaders issued a statement declaring that any government waging an attack of the sort which the British staged over the weekend cannot hope for cooperation from Palestine Jewry.

The meeting—protesting the British detention of 2,000 Jews in sweeping security raids which resulted in four deaths over the week-end—said that "Palestine Jewry cannot maintain relations with authorities unless this attack is ceased and the prisoners are released."

The weekend operation, the meeting said, "is the peak of repudiation by the British government of its international obligations to the Jewish people and the entire moral and legal basis of its existence in this country."

Vaod Leumi, the executive body administering Jewish community affairs, was reported considering the ordering of passive resistance to the British, including non-payment of taxes, complete non-cooperation, and a strike by all Jews in government service.

GI'S STONED IN TRIESTE

Troops Are Attacked By Mob; New Riots Break Out

Trieste, July 1 (AP)—American troops were stoned tonight when they broke up an attack by an angry mob on the Communist headquarters here, as a series of new riots broke out in this strike-paralyzed city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

At least eight civilians—seven men and a woman—were wounded during the day, bringing the toll of two days of armed conflict to one person killed and approximately 38 injured, and there was no indication that the violence was subsiding.

Seven American and two British soldiers were among those injured yesterday, when hand grenades exploded near their jeeps. Names were withheld. There was no announcement of additional casualties today among military personnel.

Troops Aid Police American troops and British Tommies were called into action to help the hard-pressed Venezia-guilia police when the rioters got out of hand.

The Americans, helmeted and carrying rifles and Carbines, fired several volleys into the air before the mob in front of Communist headquarters dispersed.

One civilian was shot when he stoned an American jeep loaded with military police. His comrades carried him away.

Others in the crowd threw bottles and rocks at the Americans. The riots, which began as clashes between Italian and Yugoslav sympathizers, seemed to have developed into hostilities between Rightists and Leftists.

Earlier tonight, civil police broke up a mob besieging the "Progresso" plant where several Slav and Leftist newspapers are printed.

Six men and the woman were injured this afternoon when a group of Italian youths attacked the distributing office of the Communist newspaper Il Lavoratore.

Meanwhile, a general strike of 200,000 workers halted all traffic and closed public establishments. The general strike extended beyond the limits of this vital Adriatic port into provincial areas.

Asks President's Views On Proposed Terminal Pay Bill

Washington, July 1 (AP)—The tough political question of some $3,000,000,000 in proposed terminal leave payments for 14,000,000 war veterans was tossed at President Truman today by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.).

Johnson instructed clerks of the senate military committee to obtain an immediate report on the terminal pay bill from the budget bureau, the White House's fiscal spokesman.

Previously the budget bureau had informed congress that the terminal pay plan was "not in accord with the program of the President."

The House ignored this when it passed by an overwhelming 379 to 0 vote the bill to give all wartime enlisted personnel the same terminal leave pay granted officers.

"Let's get the President's views on the measure as it now is revised," said Johnson, acting as chairman of the military committee.

The senate revision would eliminate cash payments for accumulated leave for both men and officers after September 1. It would require that leave, accumulated at the rate of 2 1/2 days a month, be used up during the current year or lost, with a limit of 30 days upon accrued leave.

Postpone Decision In Macomb County Perjury Hearing

Mt. Clemens, Mich., July 1 (AP)—At the request of the prosecution, Circuit Judge Chester P. O'Hara today postponed until Tuesday a decision whether State Senator Ivan A. Johnston will be bound over to circuit court for trial on perjury charges.

Johnston was accused of testifying falsely in Macomb. A grand jury indictment charged that while he was county prosecutor he had accepted bribes from gambling and bawdy house operators.

Special Prosecutor Melvin E. Orr of West Branch said he needed more time to answer defense counsels' motion to quash the indictment.

menus for those with that kind of appetite.

Reports of rent increases ranging from 15 per cent to 300 per cent—the latter case in Florida resort areas—were widespread.

In Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Ohio State officials heard demands for state legislation to curb the rising trend.

New York already had its own rent control program as well as the District of Columbia. In Massachusetts OPA rent ceilings were held through an emergency order from Gov. Maurice Tobin.

Leading department stores throughout the country adhered to OPA ceilings, announcing they would continue to do so until Congress had time to act.

Held To Ceilings Sears, Roebuck and company, one of the nation's largest merchandising firms, said "Sears policy will be to retain prices at established ceilings."

In housing materials and used cars there was not enough activity to establish any trend. In Newark, N. J., a 10 per cent hike in lumber prices was reported at one lumber yard. In Chicago, a used car dealer was reported asking $1,800 for a car listed at $1,500 under OPA ceilings.

Reports of reduced prices and rents were not at all rare. A Milwaukee, Wis., men's store cut prices five per cent. So did a New York delicatessen.

The price of oranges declined from $6 a crate to $4 in Baltimore. A Boston fruit dealer lowered the price on peaches and bananas.

In Phoenix, Ariz., and Miami, Fla., two sets of tenants received notices of lower monthly rent payments.

One report of increased wages due to the passing of OPA came from Portland, Me., where AFL carpenters boosted their hourly rate from $1.16 to $1.37 1/2.

The nation's consumers heard numerous "hold-the-line" pledges from business and industrial leaders but not all were completely satisfied.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), summoned his policy committee to plan a nationwide buyers' strike until price controls are restored.

He advised tenants to resist any attempts to raise rents. In New York City, spokesmen for three CIO unions with more than 17,000 members—wholesale and warehouse workers and retail employees—announced their intention to demand immediate wage increases unless the OPA is reinstated.

"We will actively support a buyers' strike," said Nathan Solomon, president of the Retail Employees Union.

In New York, the National Association of Manufacturers called on its membership to reassure the American people that industry would take no short-sighted advantage of the temporarily disrupted price control situation.

In a letter sent to all members, Ira Mosher, chairman of the association, said: "You and every producer in this country will be judged for years to come by the price policies adopted in the immediate future."

"Prove once and for all that American industry is capable of true statesmanship."

NEGRO VOTERS INTIMIDATED

Mississippi Senator Is Charged With Using Threats

Jackson, Miss., July 1 (AP)—Charges of "wholesale" intimidation, "threats and assaults" to keep negroes from voting in tomorrow's Mississippi Democratic primary were made today just before U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark announced the justice department would back up their right to vote.

The charges came from Emanuel H. Bloch, counsel for the civil rights congress, New York, who asserted that "exhortations" by Senator Theo. G. Bilbo have "spread a blanket of terror and apprehension" over 1,000,000 Mississippi negroes.

Bilbo and Rep. John E. Rankin, both outspoken advocates of white supremacy, are candidates for re-nomination in the primary.

Protests To Truman Bloch telegraphed protests to President Truman, Attorney General Clark and Senator Mead (D-NY), member of the Senate committee on elections. He urged an investigation and an "immediate pronouncement that the federal government will protect any citizen in his civil liberties and constitutional rights."

Clark said a few hours later that the full force of his department would stand behind any qualified negro voter seeking to cast his ballot in the primary. A supreme court ruling "makes federal law in this question entirely clear," he added.

COWELL BLDG. MUNISING PHONE 162TOURIST SEASON IN FULL SWING*Hotels And Cabins Are Filled To Capacity Every Night

Munising—The tourist season in Munising and vicinity is in full swing according to Lewis Merwyn, Munising Chamber of Commerce secretary who also runs the tourist information office.

All hotel rooms and cabins in the area are rented nightly with one owner having to turn ten separate parties away because he had full registration on Sunday evening.

Mr. Merwyn asked yesterday that all tourists please register at the tourist information office in the First National Bank building. He pointed out that it is important that his office know where tourists are located in order that they may be reached in an emergency. Such an emergency occurred Monday when a call came for a party in the Munising territory. Their son had just been up inquiring about bass fishing and getting various maps to locate the area. He had just signed the register when the emergency call came in and so was located and his parents got the call.

Those who registered Monday included:

Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Richardson, Detroit; N. W. Barr, Sturgis, Mich.; Bud Stanford and party of three, Salem, Ill.; Robert R. Snyder and party of four, Bourbon, Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. Luehr Cummings, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Muntz and Mr. and Mrs. Harley Houghterling, Benton Harbor; and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. George Surber, Marion, Indiana.

Fawns Seen Alone Are Not Orphans, Says Officer Here

Munising—"A fawn is as much at home in the woods as a person is in his own back yard," Helmer Carlson, conservation officer said yesterday, "and it is the wish of the conservation department that tourists and local persons leave them in the woods instead of picking them up thinking they are lost."

Mr. Carlson went on to explain that persons who see these young deer alone in the woods do not see the doe some few yards away watching its young one. He said that it is nature's way of protecting the fawn that makes it a natural instinct for them to lie still when danger is near.

A young fawn was picked up last week and is in private hands awaiting removal to Marquette where it will be properly taken care of, he said. It was in a starved condition and this was one of the rare instances when it was proper for the persons interested pick up the fawn. But this, however, is not the general practice of the conservation department to allow such handling of the young deer and depending on the circumstances, the picking up of a fawn may draw a fine for violation of the state game laws he pointed out. "Permits will not be issued anyone by the department to keep the deer," he said. "We ask that next time you see a young fawn that looks lost and hungry, look around and you'll see the doe watching you and the fawn from not too far a distance."

Analogy For FM Hard To Find, But Basic Idea Fairly Simple

By MARC J. PARSONS
NEA Staff Correspondent
New York, (NEA).—Major Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of FM—frequency modulation—says he has looked for more than a decade for an analogy between FM and something that will be readily understood by persons not technically minded, and has failed.

Nevertheless, the basic principle of frequency modulation is comparatively simple.

Sound and light travel in waves at varying speeds, and the waves are measured in cycles. The light in your home probably is 60 cycles. That is, the wave actually causes the light to flash on and off 60 times a second. Some lighting is 25 cycles and on such a circuit you can actually see the light flicker.

Radio waves, the carrier waves that deliver sound from the broadcasting studio into the radio in your home, are much faster. Here, sound waves are added to the carrier waves and when the carrier waves reach your radio, the radio removes the carrier and the sound alone passes through the speaker.

Frequency Sets Cycle

The frequency of radio carrier waves is determined by the cycle. Standard broadcasting is done on wave lengths between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles, or 550,000 to 1,600,000 cycles. Broadcasting over this band is by the method known as amplitude modulation or AM. AM stations achieve the modulation of tone by increasing or decreasing the power used to transmit. On a 50,000-watt station, the power may be varied from zero watts to as much as 200,000 watts.

Interfering waves—static—whether man-made or nature-made, from electric razors to electric storms, become mixed with the sound waves because they are attracted to the AM carrier waves. This is because these interfering waves have amplitude characteristics much like the carrier waves. When the interfering waves become mixed with the sound waves they ride into your radio receiver in the form of static.

Major Armstrong found that by producing a wave that was different in character from the AM type of wave the effects of static could be overcome. And he produced this wave by varying the frequency rather than varying the power output—by frequency modulation. But the upper bands of the spectrum were needed to transmit these waves. Today, frequency modulation stations are licensed in the 88 to 108 megacycle band—88,000,000 to 108,000,000 cycles.

In FM broadcasting the frequency is varied as much as 75 kilocycles on either side of the assigned frequency, a range of 150 kilocycles. While this variation would amount to a big percentage of the entire frequency assigned for all AM broadcasting, it actually amounts to a minute change in the FM band.

Broadcast sound waves ride inside the FM carrier waves. The static interference, because of its different characteristics, rides on the outside of the carrier waves and when the carrier waves reach your radio, the sound waves come through clearly and the static is absorbed along with the now useless carrier waves.

FM has certain other basic advantages.

It is possible to transmit over FM a full tonal scale of 15,000 cycles, from the deepest bass to the highest overtone. AM tone fidelity is limited to 5,000 cycles.

There is no fading of reception in FM.

Because the assigned wave channels are 200 kilocycles apart and the frequency variation is only 150 kilocycles, there is a safety island between each FM channel that prevents two FM stations on adjoining frequencies from overlapping and thereby interfering with each other.

The range of FM is limited by the height of the transmitting antenna above the surrounding country, and this range does not increase or decrease with night or changes in weather conditions. But even if two stations, sufficiently nearby and on the exact same frequency, transmit simultaneously an FM receiver will automatically reject the weaker signal and bring the stronger in clearly.

But the most socially significant advantage to FM is that it makes possible the expansion of the entire field of broadcasting, and the building of thousands of new stations in cities and towns heretofore without stations of their own.

1. In top panel is an electrical sound wave, represented by musical notes, after it has left the microphone. It is the same carrier wave as for conventional radio as for frequency modulation. To get anywhere, it must ride a carrier wave, shown in lower panel before it has taken the sound wave aboard. It, too, is much the same for AM as for FM.

3. As the sound wave rides the carrier wave through space, it encounters static which jumps aboard to join the ride. In AM the static (represented by black dots with curly lines) sits right beside the sound. But in FM the sound is riding comfortably inside and the static is just a hitch-hiker on the edge of the modulated carrier wave.

Paris Can-Can Girls Complain About Wages

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
6 NEA Staff Correspondent

Paris, (NEA)—The Can-Can girls don't want to can-can any more.

Their high kick from the dance floor of the famed Bal Tabarin has been symbolic of night life in Gay Paree since the turn of the century, but now the girls who do the kicking are joining the list of post-war scarcities.

The war, the general unrest in France, and the low salaries they get for their nightly stint have taken the glamour out of their dance, the girls say. At least six of the present group of eight at the Bal Tabarin have found romance, marriage, and a home of their own more appealing.

Despite the display of black silk stockings, legs, colorful garters and frothy, alluring lingerie, the girls themselves could not be better guarded if they lived within the walls of a convent. A forbidding iron door, the key to which never leaves the possession of the stage manager, bars the entry to their dressing-rooms, situated deep down under the sliding stage. Not until the end of the show are they allowed to meet their fans or dates, but usually they make a dash for the last metro home.

In Class Apart

Can-Can dancers are in a class apart, according to Pierre Sandrini, who is Tabarin's manager. "Their training is just as exciting as any acrobatic act. They have to keep exercising every day. The slightest indulgence such as staying up until the wee hours and drinking champagne is sure to tell on a girl's performance."

Sandrini knows what he is talking about. He is the son of a famous ballerina who danced at the Paris Opera some two decades ago. He deplores the fact that the show-girl of today is as different from her predecessor of two or three generations ago as the silent movies are from the "talkies." They are more exacting. They also want to earn their money with the least possible effort. Girls are no longer willing to undergo every night, seven nights a week, the grueling workout of 20 minutes of the fastest acrobatic dancing invention.

The Can-Can like all French teams of an international class, is not entirely composed of national talent. Lonka is Hungarian and Wally is Polish, but Ginette, Lilliane, Lola, Collette, Francoise and Mona are French. Mona, the youngest, is 14 years old. Only three of the pre-war troupe remain. At the outbreak of war Roselli, who had been dancing in the Can-Can for 16 years, resigned along with three other colleagues. Lilliane is the only married member with a small son, Gerald, to whom she is devoted. There are pictures of him at all ages in the communal dressing-room which the eight girls share. Strangely enough, not one of them aspires to a movie career.

The girls' stage manager, Monsieur Dupont is not only a strict disciplinarian, but tries his best to discourage their yearning for the Prince Charming and the love-in-a-cottage idea. He knows Quonset Huts Now On Civilian Market, Available In U. P.

Still looking for a quonset hut? Then here's the answer.

Exclusive dealer rights in Upper Michigan for three types of quonset huts manufactured by the Great Lakes Steel Corporation at its "Stran-Steel" division in Detroit, have been granted the Lake Shore Engineering company, of Iron Mountain, it was announced today by F. A. Flodin, president. The first shipment of huts is expected in the next few days.

The Stran-Steel huts are produced in three designs—the "20," "24" and "40"—ranging from small to large.

The Quonset-20, measuring 20 by 48 feet, may readily be converted into five or six rooms, for domestic use. Weather and fire proof, free from sag, rot and vermin, the "20" is being widely used for living purposes, particularly in newly-developed industrial areas, and in regions where low-cost housing has all but disappeared. The abundance of usable space gives the occupant a free hand in creating attractive interiors which, in conjunction with the Quonset's sturdy construction, is effecting new standards in the field of temporary housing.

Low-Cost Unit

Low in cost, quick to erect, easy to dismantle and simple to adapt, the Quonset-20 is the modern answer to temporary, and in some instances, permanent housing needs.

The backbone of Quonset huts is a simple, easy-to-erect framing system, consisting of lightweight steel members fabricated to required lengths and shapes, and providing a patented nailing groove in joists, arch ribs and puddles, for attaching materials. Siding and roofing are simply nailed in by ordinary hammer-and-nail methods. Insulating materials can be attached to the interior, by the same method.

Operation Crossroad

THE first atomic test in Bikini atoll went off according to schedule Sunday afternoon, U. S. time, and although the total effect of the explosion on the guinea pig fleet of naval vessels still is unknown, initial reports leave no room for doubt that atomic warfare is horrifying.

The first test Sunday is generally regarded as the least destructive of the three tests that are planned. In this experiment, the atomic bomb was exploded in midair, over the target fleet. Similar explosions in New Mexico and over Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan provided advance information concerning what may be expected in atomic explosions of this kind. The next two tests, however, have never before been tried. In the second, an atomic bomb will be exploded at sea level and in the final test, a bomb will be exploded underwater below the target fleet.

The purpose of these atomic tests has been subjected to much discussion and considerable criticism. They do have a definite value to the American people and to the world, however. They will provide information that will be important in determining our plans for national defense in the future. They may even be an instrument that will eventually cause the creation of a workable plan to outlaw war itself.

As a result of similar tests made in the early summer of 1921, off the Virginia Capes, the first definite knowledge that bombs dropped from airplanes could sink a battleship was attained.

We must know the effect of atomic explosions on naval vessels if we are to plan our national defense sensibly. We cannot wait until the next war to find out. It would be too late then.

Bilbo of Mississippi

TODAY'S primary election in Mississippi has attracted nation-wide attention as a result of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo's bombastic and demagogic campaign for the Democratic renomination to the senate.

Bilbo's campaign speeches sounded like the harangue of a Ku Klux Klan orator at the burning of a fiery cross. He bitterly attacked Negroes and Catholics, and paraded himself as the heroic defender of the South in a mythical battle against Yankee domination.

Magazines, newspapers and radio commentators all over the country have turned the spotlight on Mississippi's primary and have lampooned the "man with the flaming red tie." All these attacks from outside sources make good political capital for Bilbo, for many voters resent foreign interference in their elections.

The Negroes of Mississippi do not like Bilbo, but there is little they can do about it, for although they have the right to vote very few of them are registered. Their leaders charge that various devices were used to prevent registration by Negroes.

It seems strange that a man like Bilbo, campaigning on a typical Ku Klux Klan platform, could be elected to the highest offices in a state. Chiefly, it is because there are many Mississippi voters who have not had enough schooling to enable them to think for themselves. Mississippi has one of the lowest rates of literacy in the nation. Perhaps, some Mississippi politicians want it that way.

Philippine Independence

ON THE 170th anniversary of American independence, and a day short of the first anniversary of its official liberation from the Japanese enemy, the Philippine Commonwealth becomes an independent republic of sovereign equality among the nations of the world.

The happy occasion is made doubly happy by the circumstances of its occurrence. The date of Philippine independence was decided upon 12 years ago. No one then could have imagined the tragic period which lay ahead for the commonwealth and its protector nation. Or, if that period could have been foreseen, few would have believed that the promise of independence could be realized now.

But that promise survived through the black days of defeat in the early months of 1942. Those black days served to bind the United States and the Philippines more closely. Bataan and Corregidor became enshrined in the hearts of Filipinos and Americans alike through the exemplary heroism of the men of both nations who defended them.

Nor did the Filipinos' courage fail with the departure of the Americans and the subsequent occupation. Neither the Japs' cajolery nor their brutality could break it. The Filipinos fought with the courage of the free men which they were then in spirit and have now become in fact.

The Philippines' independence day dawned upon many parts of the world where freedom and independence are still in doubt. On their own side of the globe the Filipinos see civil strife in a free neighbor nation and serious unrest among the colonial peoples of the East. Elsewhere in the world the pressure of the strong upon the weak is not abated. All of which must make their complete freedom even more precious.

For America this day of Philippine independence is almost as proud an event as it is for the islanders themselves. It marks the complete success of our one great colonial venture and the complete vindication of the policies employed.

During more than 50 years the Filipinos have advanced, under our guidance, from a woefully low estate to a level of literacy and living standards unmatched in the Orient except in Japan. And the end of that half century finds the mutual friendship and admiration of America and the Philippines stronger than ever before.

Today we are accused by some of being imperialists and harboring colonial ambitions. Against these untrue charges stands the independent Philippine Republic to refute in fact what has been charged in apparently malicious fancy.

The early days of the new republic will certainly be difficult. The loss in lives and property during the Japanese war was grievously severe. But recovery is slowly going forward. And the courage with which the islands' citizens withstood the Japanese aggressor, with the help that the United States stands ready to give, may be counted on to see them through the trying times ahead.

And so America says to its friends in the far Pacific: Long live the Philippine Republic! National independence has never been given or received more proudly.

New Hay Fever Drug

A REFUGEE German scientist has developed a new drug for some five million Americans who suffer from hay fever with each recurring late summer. The drug is said to have brought complete recovery in 37 per cent of the cases treated, and 70 to 90 per cent improvement in 41 per cent of all cases.

The new remedy is taken as a pill, under the direction of a physician. Those who know the sorry record of 'shots' for hay fever, which fall about as often as they give any benefit, will be rather skeptical of the new drug until it has a further trying out.

Authorities in a large western clinic say that many hay fever, asthma, and sinus patients exhibit a decided shortage of calcium. Somehow or other, numbers of people cannot absorb enough calcium from their foods, or their milk drinks, to keep themselves in good health. Just why this is so is a mystery.

However, in a good many cases relief has been afforded by the administration of dicalcium phosphate, a preparation usually carried in stock by drug stores. But warning is given that this can best be taken under doctors' orders, and the literature on the treatment is still scanty.

It is possible, of course, that some simple hay fever remedy can be found that will minimize or even cure the affliction in the majority of cases. Until that fortunate day, the best means of relief will consist of finding a cool and pollen-free climate, and staying there till the ragweed season is over.

There is always a chance, too, that ragweed eradication will become successful on a large scale. Many people will remember the anti-ragweed campaign staged here some years ago, when truckloads of the stuff, cut down in the alleys, highways and byways, were carted down Ludington street in parade. That night half the town was sneezing its head off. No doubt there is a good deal more virtue in some of the new DDT derivatives, when it comes to getting rid of ragweed.

GOOD BUSINESS

(Chicago Journal of Commerce)

A doctor in Chicago who before the war bought a new automobile every two years or so has been driving his 1941 model because he was unwilling to pay more than ceiling price for a new one. He had made no effort to get a 1946 model but had accepted as generally true the stories of $500 and $1,000 overpayments which are going around these days.

Recently the doctor had a telephone call from the dealer whom he had patronized before the war. The dealer, who handles cars made by one of the "big three" in the industry, said he had been going over his books, noting the names of his best pre-war customers. One of these was the doctor. Would the doctor like to buy a brand new car at ceiling price? The doctor would and he did.

The incident is recounted here because it seems unusual but also because it is an example of good business. This particular dealer is far-sighted and is acting in his own interest as well as that of his customers. His trade practices and ethics will pay off when the buyers' market returns, as it surely will in the not too distant future.

WORDS TO WATCH

Q. A British friend tells me that we Americans all mispronounce the word banana. According to him, we should say "ba-NAH-na." Please discuss.—M. M.

A. The British pronunciation is "buh-NAH-nuh," but it is never heard in the speech of Americans. We say: buh-NAN-uh. The word entered the American language from American Spanish, from a now extinct dialect of the West Indies. Thus banana is a word which originated in this hemisphere and is not a part of the British English language except as an American loan word. The English first pronounced it "buh-NAY-nuh," changing later to "buh-NAH-nuh."

There are tens of thousands of such strictly American words which have entered British English. To name a few: cocoa, chocolate, potato, tomato, tobacco, alligator, canoe, hammock, toboggan, lasso, ranch, barbeque.

Watch the word drowned. Note that it is not spelled "d-e-d." Therefore, "drown-d" is incorrect. The word has one syl-

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—The New York newspapers have recently been carrying advertisements for British goods—luggage, bicycles, even small motor cars. This points up the British comeback since the end of the war which is truly a remarkable achievement.

British exports for May according to a recent report from London, were $340,800,000. Which was greater than the 1938 average monthly volume. It took four years after World War I to reach three-fourths of the 1913 volume which is a measure of British success after World War II.

Of course, there's still a big gap to be filled before exports equal imports. The total for May was $463,600,000. This is a gruelling race Britain has been running ever since the days when America's mass production industry first began sending goods into the world's market.

—MUST IMPORT TO EAT—

Britain must import to eat. That is the rub. The fact that the gap between imports is so small, comparatively speaking, is because the British people are willing to accept restrictions and, yes, hardships in the aftermath of the terrible punishment they took during the war.

What we are seeing today is an extraordinary example of self-discipline. As a disciplined people, the British are living at a standard even a little lower than what they lived on during the war when they had lend-lease. Under a labor government, strikes have been few and far between.

Examining this record made me think back to a conversation which some Britishers and Americans had around a luncheon table a few months before the end of the war. The occasion was the farewell of a British official going back to London and eventually to civilian life. One of the Americans raised the question of this country's vast new war time productive capacity and how the British would meet American competition in the postwar period.

The retiring British official, feeling free to speak since he was no longer a member of the government, said:

"Oh, you know we're not really afraid of you on that score. Because you see we feel you're so divided internally that you can never bring your industrial power to an effecting focus in a peacetime world."

This was said without rancor, merely as an observation. The Americans present looked skeptical. It seemed to be a rationalization intended to soothe British fears and uncertainties. But I'm sure we have all thought of it many times since in the midst of our own conflicts and confusions.

A great many things can be said against the Pax Britannica that the British maintained for nearly a century. It was often brutal and repressive. But it represented disciplined order-keeping throughout the world. The present government is undertaking a transition to new forms of cooperation with people formerly dependent. It is beyond belief difficult, but they are trying.

—IRISH PRAISE BRITISH—

Besides the need to export there is another reason for Britain's meager rations. They are making sacrifices in order to be able to send food to those who are on the edge of starvation in Europe. It's news when the Irish praise the British. This is what Prime Minister DeValera had to say in the parliament in Dublin the other day:

"As far as England is concerned, it is a matter that everybody must regard as wonderful the way in which the British are denying themselves to see that more supplies will be available for Europe. . . . We must remember that most of the British difficulties at present are endured deliberately in order to make available to the continent more than would otherwise be possible. There is no doubt they are working their system well and there is very little complaint about black markets or anything like that."

Bread is to be rationed in England, beginning July 21. This will be on top of all the other rationing that has carried over from the war. The patient British know the difficulty of their plight. They are trying to work their way out by sheer stamina.

If we are to take responsibility in proportion to our power, then we will have to show a lot more self-restraint. Our record during the past year has not been good.

After long delay, the house is taking up the British loan already passed by the senate. The loan will make it possible for Britain to become part of a world trading system and not merely a back-to-the-wall rival fighting with empire tariffs and empire preference. The house will then have the perfect opportunity to show self-restraint plus quick action.

lable only. Rhyme with "found, ground." Say: He was dround.

There is no "tree" in extra. Not EKS-tree. The vowel in the second syllable is "uh" as in sofa. Say: EKS-troh.

There is no "dear" in Idea. Do not say, "I have an eye-dear that . . ." Idea is a three-syllable word. Accent the second, thus: eye-DEE-uh.

In careless speech the word laboratory is telescoped thus: LAB-uh-TAW-ree. Give the word five full syllables, thus: LAB-oh-ruh-TOE-ree.

There is no "bea" in barbarous. But it is surprising how often the mispronunciation "bar-BEAR-ee-us" is heard, even in high places. The word has three syllables only. Better say: BAHR-buh-russ.

A Long, Dark Road---But the Dawn Is There

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

OLD-FASHIONED FOURTH

In a couple of days it will be the Fourth of July and at almost every celebration of any importance there will be evening fireworks displays. These will be carefully supervised, discreetly removed from the proximity of crowds and, while colorful, still but an anemic reminder of the hectic Fourth of the past.

This is no complaint against the crusaders who have taken burned fingers, blinded eyes, tetanus and shattered ear drums out of the Fourth of July celebration picture. It is simply a rather nostalgic statement that the modern Fourth is a rather impersonal exhibition compared with those of an earlier day.

THE CRACK OF DAWN — Fourth of July a score or more years ago was heralded in every hamlet, village and town with some of the loudest and certainly the earliest noise of a noisy day. It was the habit of one old gentleman in the town in which we lived to load a double-barreled shotgun with an overcharge of powder the night of July 3. He would set the gun in a corner of his bedroom, and the alarm clock for 4 a. m. Then at this uncouth hour he would arise, and still in his nightgown take the shotgun and repair to the back lawn. Pointing the gun skyward he would close his eyes and pull both triggers. The resulting blast shook windows for blocks around, and startled the youngsters into wakefulness for the long day ahead.

STARTING EARLY — Parents may have cursed the old man, and the old man may have decided on such an early-morning noise-binge out of revenge. Perhaps he had been awakened too often on the morning of the Fourth by some other eccentric in the past.

Children (particularly boys and young men) started accumulating noise-making explosives days and weeks ahead of Fourth of July back in those "good old days." For if you waited too long, the supply would be exhausted — at least of the more desirable pieces.

These "desirable pieces" included such hand-wrecking, face-blasting devices as cannon crackers up to a foot long, sky rockets that (if poorly aimed) would shoot without the aid of radar, and pin-wheels that usually jumped off their pins when going full-speed and chased crazily around the yard knocking down peonies, lawn chairs and children.

THE BIG BOOM — Days before the Fourth the older boys experimented with noise-making devices whose central explosive was the cannon cracker. The man who invented the cannon cracker has never been properly recognized by posterity. A proper memorial for this unknown benefactor of the medical profession would be a carved upright hand with three fingers missing.

But to get back to the youthful experimenters of an earlier day and their use of the cannon crackers. They would take the machine of death and (1) place it under a tin can after lighting the fuse; (2) place it in a length of hollow pipe with wooden corks at each end; (3) just light the fuse and hold it as long as audacity prevailed and then give it a hasty toss.

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1936

Formal charges against T. F. Kessler, seeking his removal as Escanaba city manager, were prepared for reading at a special meeting of the city council last night but the reading was postponed because of the absence of Councilman R. B. Stack.

The Escanaba American Legion will lose its post chaplain as a result of the transfer of the Rev. T. A. Dregacz from Perronville to Wakefield, as announced by Bishop Plagens of Marquette. Known familiarly as "Father Tom," the Rev. Fr. Dregacz has served as chaplain of Cloverland Post 82 since 1923.

Marquette—The Robert T. Peters class, numbering 27 candidates and named in honor of Ahmed temple's potentate, Saturday elected John P. Norton, Escanaba publisher, as its president at the conclusion of the ceremonial session which was the highlight of the two-day international Shrine reunion here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wenner, 809 South 13th street, are the parents of a son, born Sunday at St. Francis hospital.

20 Years Ago—1926

Miss Nora Arntzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gothard Arntzen, 702 South 12th street, became the bride of Oliver Thorsen, son of the late Mrs. Marie Thorsen of this city, Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at one of the most attractive wedding services of the season.

The temperature for Escanaba reached a new high point for the year yesterday when the mercury climbed to 88 degrees.

Iron Mountain — Three Escanaba women placed among the winners at the invitational golf tournament sponsored by the Pine Grove golf club of Iron Mountain today. Mrs. G. W. Moll was winner of the third flight; Mrs. C. W. Anderson carried off honors in the fourth, and Mrs. Guy Sullivan was awarded the consolation in the fourth.

The results were as follows: 1—The tin can would fly mightily at the explosion, cutting little Johnny's upper lip from nose to mouth; 2—The wooden plugs would blow outward or the pipe would explode with a lethal bang; 3—The boy with the most bravado and the shortest fuse on his cannon cracker would thereafter be able to pose for the memorial suggested above.

CELEBRATION — The program for the Fourth included other things besides fireworks, although there was the high spot of the day. There was the inevitable parade, the speeches in the park, picnic lunches, and music by the band. The parade was hot and exciting; the speeches hot and unexciting; the lunches consisted largely of cold ham, potato salad, ice cream, watermelon and iced tea; and the band concert of barking dogs and screaming children, popping firecrackers and snatches of "Poet and Peasant Overture."

THE EVENING — The hours after 4 o'clock until night came seemed endless to the youngsters, but it was a pleasant respite for the older folks. In the cool of the evening the fireflies turned their neon on and off near the back-drops of the spider hedge, and the dazedly happy children bickered exhaustively over whether it was dark enough to start the sparklers. On the porch the ladies rocked, and the men sat silently on the steps, thinking of tomorrow.

"Well, I guess it's dark enough," they said finally to each other, and two or three would bring out the pin-wheels, the sky rockets,

Q. Does National Service Life Insurance provide for lump sum payments?

A. Under the present provisions claim payments are available only in monthly installments. However, there are proposed bills in Congress requesting a change to provide for lump-sum payments.

Q. What happens if the loan payments under the G. I. Bill are not paid?

A. If the payments are not made when due, the loan is in default and the lender takes such action as is provided in the loan agreement and by the State laws and regulations.

Q. Who said, "The more I see of men, the better I like dogs?"

A. The saying is usually attributed to Madame Roland. The original reads: "Plus je vois les hommes, plus j'admire les chiens."

Q. I want to add a jacket dress to my wardrobe and am undecided whether to have the jacket made of the same material as the dress. My wardrobe is limited and I may want to use the jacket with other dresses.

A. Why not make the dress of one of the lovely bright figured spring crepes and the jacket of a plain lightweight woolen material. You can add a plain crepe dress later, which will give you double duty from the same jacket.

Q. In baseball, the score is 4 to 3 in favor of the team first at bat at the end of their half of the fifth inning. The team second at bat makes two runs in their half of the inning, and the game is terminated before three men are out. What is the official ruling?

A. The team second at bat wins by the score of 5 to 4. In this case the total number of runs made by both teams are counted.

Q. Where does the money come from to pay unemployment benefits?

A. State unemployment funds, from which benefits are paid, are built up by payroll taxes. In all states these taxes are levied on the employer and in a few states on employees, as well.

and the Roman candles. By this time the children had used up their supply of sparklers in a premature but squealing display.

With many a warning they withdrew to the safety of the porch steps and the men shot off the pieces they had bought and hoarded for this occasion. Following the exclamations at each display the last flicker of a Roman candle faded in the night sky. The children were herded off to bed, tired, surfeited and exhausted. It was their big day of the year.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—The nation's new money chief, John Snyder, now has a chance to show that he is not the bosom pal of big business that his critics say he is. Tax experts claim he can save four or five billion dollars for United States treasury with one simple move.

Juiciest gravy in the current tax legislation is the continuance of the carry-back of unused excess profits credit. The Senate Finance committee, always friendly to big business, not only knocked out the excess profits tax last year, but retained carry-back refunds. This permits corporations whose current earnings do not proportionately match their 1936-1939 earnings, to claim adjustments in their 1946 tax payments.

This is one reason some firms don't worry too much about prolonged strikes. General Motors alone will probably hit the treasury for a refund of 80 million dollars. To head off this drain on the treasury, Rep. Cleveland Bailey of Clarksburg, W. Va., Democrat, introduced a bill last January to repeal the carry-back provisions. On January 23, the House Ways and Means committee asked the treasury for a report.

However, no report is forthcoming yet. Nor is there any sign that it will be made by the time congress adjourns. Somebody in the treasury has been sitting on his hands.

Last week impatient Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, Democrat, proposed that Congress act independently, without waiting for the treasury report. He pointed out that large credits can be claimed by corporations which actually make more money this year than they did in any of the years from 1936 to 1939, simply because their capital investment is now larger.

Mills charged that many large companies are taking advantage of this loophole, and as a result the taxpayer foots the bill for the expansion of private industries. He also listed a long series of "abuses and transactions which will no doubt be resorted to in order to create carry-back refunds or tax credits."

Congressional tax experts think there is a chance that repeal of the carry-back provision might be put through this year—if the treasury sends up a strong report recommending it. That is where new Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has his big chance to show he is not always the pal of big business.

—HURLEY'S HIGH-JINKS—

If you happen to be sitting at dinner anywhere near ex-Secretary of War Pat Hurley of Washington, Oklahoma and New Mexico, you have to be careful. You never can tell just what's going to happen.

At least that's the testimony of guests at a stag dinner attended by Hurley, Senator Burt Wheeler, ex-Artillery General Homer Cummings and Warren Lee Pierson some time ago. They are still talking about it.

Nothing happened until the middle of the meal, then Pierson, former head of the export-import bank, now president of the Radio Corporation of America, made a grinning reference to the old mule skinner in their midst. Hurley, who once drove a mule in an Oklahoma mine and usually goes out of the way to boast about it, suddenly dropped his knife and fork and belted:

"I heard that crack you made about me and I'm getting tired of your insinuations. Everybody knows what you think of me. Sure, I used to be a mule skinner. Do you want to make something of it?"

The nonplussed Pierson tried to explain that he meant nothing by the remark, but was only "kidding." He thought for a moment that Hurley had mistaken him for a newspaper columnist by the same name. Hurley, however, was spoiling for action and refused to accept the apology. Jumping to his feet, he began to peel off his coat.

"I've taken all I'm going to from you. Come on outside and we'll settle this thing right now."

By this time, Pierson's own dander was up.

"I don't know what's eating you, but if you want to fight I'll be glad to accommodate you," he shot back.

Both men had started for the door when friends intervened and induced them to return to their seats.

"I'm the moderator here," soothed Homer Cummings. "Let's have order."

—RACE TRACKS GET BUSY—

At that time Small lacked both the personnel and the money to regulate future construction. He wired former war production board men all over the country asking them to come back. Meanwhile word leaked out a day or two before March 26 that all non-essential building was to be stopped, and contractors rushed to put a "piece of steel in the ground" so they could say construction already had started.

One big question since then has been to decide whether jobs already started should be stopped. CPA's Small and his staff have found that stoppage sometimes would create hardship, sometimes bankruptcy. That is one reason why the race tracks and much unessential construction is continuing.

Some people, including this writer, don't believe the CPA staff has been tough enough, but obviously it's a difficult problem. And whether right or wrong in the past, it is only fair to point out that his staff has been doing an increasingly good job recently. Housing Czar Wilson Wyatt and others now pay tribute to the CPA boss for throwing everything he has into the veterans building program.

Spike Keim, Skywriter, Stretches Local Necks

Folks in the Escanaba locality craned their collective necks yesterday afternoon to watch "Spike" Keim, one of America's ace skywriters, do his stuff with letters one mile long.

Keim didn't stop over at Escanaba, but is using the Menominee airport as his base for skywriting operations in this area. He uses a "Vultee" plane, and the "smoke" is an oil base chemical. He is 40 years old, married, and the father of three children—all of whom fly. His wife soloed before he married—according to advance publicity by the Pepsi-Cola company which is paying Keim for his up-in-the-air penmanship.

When skywriter Keim reaches 12,000 feet from the ground he writes in block letters a mile high and ten or twelve miles long, visible within a radius of twenty miles.

The specially equipped planes used by skywriters give off a smoke compounded of a secret formula of oil, chemicals and gas which is heavy enough to keep the message intact for thirty minutes unless there is a strong wind. Skywriting is generally done with the aid of exact diagrams laid out according to the message to be written, but some of the men observe they have written a message so many times that they could write it with their eyes shut.

Uncle Sam claimed Keim for three years. He was in the Ferrying Command Division of the Air Transport Command, stationed at Homestead, Florida, under Col. Samuel C. Dunlap where, with the rank of Major, he acted as in-

Actor Finds It's Snap To Become A Civilian

By ROBERT H. MYERS
Hollywood—(P)—Kent Smith is one actor back from army duty whose face should be familiar to many an ex-G.I.

Twenty-three months in the signal corps, the former New York stage actor appeared in numerous training films. His last stint in an army production was, to Smith, the best of them all.

It was the short, "How to Become a Civilian." Tall, dark-haired Smith said he thought this movie was seen, by compulsion if not for entertainment, by more soldiers than any of the army series.

"Authorities in Washington felt, with some justification, that the boys might need a little indoctrination to the rigors of life back home," he explained.

But Smith's soldier pals may mix wry amusement with deep envy when they see his re-introduction to civilian-actor status. In "The Spiral Staircase" he wins Dorothy McGuire, and in "Nora Prentiss" he makes love to Ann Sheridan.

"I can hear some of their cracks now," he said with a wide grin.

Smith, now 39, is getting his second wind in pictures after thorough stage grounding that included roles in plays with Cornell, Hayes, Cowl and others.

Prior to army service, Smith was in several "B" pictures, including "Hitler's Children." Now, with a contract with two studios, Warners and R-K-O, his second wind is better than ever.

Back to the "Civilian" chores opposite Ann Sheridan—

During production, Kent kissed Annie so many times he lost count. He added: "I kissed her in the moonlight, daylight and electric light. Indoors, outdoors, in an auto, airplane, train and on a ferry boat. Twenty . . . thirty . . . forty times."

"That," he concluded, "is really 'How to Become a Civilian.'"

But that ain't the script the army put out.

FIVE TROOPERS GET TRANSFERS

Changes Made At Gladstone, L'Anse And Newberry

Transfers of four troopers within the Eighth district, and addition of one trooper sent from Lower Michigan, was announced by Capt. Carl W. Robertson, Upper Peninsula commander of Michigan state police posts at Marquette.

The transfers are effective Sunday, July 1.

Trooper Fred Chrispell, stationed at Gladstone since leaving the Navy and returning to duty with the state police last February 15, is being transferred to Marquette headquarters as district detective. He enlisted July 18, 1934, and has been stationed in Traverse City, Jonesville, Brighton, Center Line and was assigned to a special investigation squad before entering the Navy in October of 1944. He has been cited several times for meritorious service and honorable mention and has had several years' experience in criminal investigation.

Trooper Arne Maki, with the state police for about 10 years, is being transferred from Manistee to the Gladstone post. His service includes assignments with a special investigation squad on internal security during the war. He has been cited for meritorious service and honorable mention.

3 Others Get New Posts
The remaining transfers will send John Mongiat from Newberry to Wakefield, Joseph Zimmer from Wakefield to L'Anse, and Robert Deyo from L'Anse to Newberry.

Mongiat enlisted in the state police July 10, 1934, and has served at East Lansing, Rockwood, Iron Mountain, St. Ignace and Newberry and was assigned to a special investigation squad on internal security matters during the war. He had been cited for bravery and meritorious service, the bravery award coming for an attempt to save a life in the Straits of Mackinac in winter, when the Straits were full of ice.

Zimmer has been a member of the Michigan state police since October 22, 1940, and has served in Erie, Wakefield and Marquette.

Gaining recognition as an outstanding pistol shot during his service with the state police, Deyo, who enlisted in October of 1937, has been stationed in East Lansing, White Pigeon, Cheboygan and L'Anse.

ARMY AND NAVY PLANES VARIED

Unconventional Designs
Are Undergoing
Tests

Washington (SS).—The Navy's new turtle-shaped experimental fighter XF5U-1, now ready for flight tests, is as revolutionary in appearance as the Army's new Flying Wing.

Both are part of a new trend in airframe conformation to eliminate the body-drag of the fish shaped fuselage of the conventional aircraft.

The new Navy plane has short, wide wings but depends for supporting lift in flight largely on its flat under-surface. The Flying Wing is all wings. It is composed of two broad, low wing-shaped parts joined in a wide-spreading V at their bases with space within them at the junction to hold crew and equipment.

There are many differences in the two planes. The Flying Wing's four engines are tucked away inside the wings on their rear edges and operate pusher propellers. The Navy plane's two engines are prominently located at the outside corners of the crafts squared-off front with the puller propellers well forward. An important feature of this plane's power arrangement is that either engine can operate both propellers if one engine is blacked out.

LOOK HERE!
there may be
NO SOAP for a MONTH!

IT COULD HAPPEN! The world-wide shortage of fats and oils is desperate. Unless you and every American housewife keep turning in your used fats, a whole month's supply of soap may be lost to each one of us!

Goodness! I'd better get back to saving every drop of USED FAT!

DON'T LET SOAP SHORTAGES get worse! Skim, scrape, and scoop every drop of used fats. Tell your neighbor, too. Used fats are urgently needed for soap and other peacetime goods!

The new Navy plane, built by Chance Vought Aircraft, has range of speed from extremely slow to extremely fast. It may prove to be the world's fastest propeller-driven plane. It will have a speed range from 40 to 425 miles per hour with its present two-speed engines. With the addition of water-injection its range will increase to from 20 to 460 miles an hour. Later, with gas turbines, the top speed may approach 550 miles.

British also are experimenting with revolutionary types of planes. A plane like the Army's Northrop Flying Wing is in an advanced stage of construction. This English version will be jet-powered, it is reported, and will be able to cross the Atlantic in from seven to eight hours.

The Flying Ram XP-7A, also an Army Northrop plane of the Flying Wing type, is a bat-like craft which the pilot operates lying down with a bullet-proof glass bubble over his head. In this prone position he can go through maneuvers not dreamed of in other types. It has now been flight-tested. It is designed for ramming enemy aircraft at speeds approaching the velocity of sound. It is constructed of magnesium with knife-like wings and, because of the material used, its design and speed, is almost invisible as it shoots through the air.

A rocket-powered plane, another craft of unconventional design, built for the Army by Bell Aircraft, is now ready for trial. It is designed to travel faster than the speed of sound. It has already been tested without engines by taking it to great heights and using gravity for power. It is rocket-powered so that it can travel at high altitudes where jet engines can not be used because of the lack of oxygen. It is the XS-1.

FUR IMPORTS ARE OPPOSED

Curtailment Is Proposed
By Rep. Byrnes Of Wisconsin

Washington, D. C. (WNS).—Curtailed imports of furs, which might make this country a dumping ground for war-accumulated furs, is provided for in a bill introduced by Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, he said today.

It is provided in the bill that the total imports of mink and fox, except red fox skins, during any import year shall not exceed 15 per cent of the domestic pelt production during the preceding year, effective July 1, 1947.

The fur farming industry in Wisconsin, Michigan and some other states has made rapid progress since the early twenties, contributing to the economic stability of rural communities, but is now facing a crisis caused by unusual conditions created in the world market by the war.

"Huge stocks of pelts are piling up in foreign countries," Rep. Byrnes said. "Production of fur-bearing animals overseas isn't increasing. Foreign exporters are eyeing hungrily the great American market, denied them during the war by lack of shipping facilities."

That within the next few years the United States may be made a dumping ground for a vast quantity of war-accumulated furs is predicted. This can only lead to the ruin of the American fur farmer's logical market—unless a portion of the market is preserved for domestically raised pelts, it is contended.

Representative Byrnes said the average fur farm is built around the small family unit, similar to dairy or produce farms, and that the American industry would have to meet this abnormal competition at an extremely unfavorable time. He also said that basic factors in the cost of production in this country far exceed those in any other, and that it is evident from the general economic trend that cost of wages, feed products and general overhead expenses will continue to rise, so that our fur farmers will be unable to compete in the open market with foreign countries.

IT PAYS TO WAIT FOR A SURGE

Even the full swing of stepped up peacetime production can't quite meet the demand for Surge Milk. Dairy families need a machine that will do more of their work and save more of their time—they need Surge Milking.

The simple fact is that the Surge does do automatically what other machines have to be helped to do.

The Surge does do more of your work and save more of your time.

That's why you can afford to wait just a little longer and make sure you get a Surge.

A Modern Machine is a better investment.

Paquin Appeals To State For County Equalization

Supervisor Earl Paquin of Escanaba township yesterday through the office of County Clerk T. Theodore Ohlen filed an appeal to the state tax commission asking it to review equalized valuations in Delta county as established by the county board.

The county board adopted the equalization report last Wednesday after a three-day session. Appeals to the state tax commission must be filed within five days, and Sup. Paquin's appeal was made on the fifth day.

The appeal was addressed to Louis M. Nims, chairman of the state tax commission and presented information on the assessed and equalized real property valuations as established by the county board. Sup. Paquin cited the fact that he had objected to the equalization by voting no, and his vote was one of eight negative votes on the equalization committee's report.

In the appeal to the state tax commission, Sup. Paquin charged that the county's equalization was discriminatory, unfair and inequitable and that as a result it placed an unjust burden upon the taxpayers of Escanaba township. He asked that the commission review the county equalization for the fiscal year 1946-47.

This is the second consecutive year that an appeal has been filed with the state tax commission for an equalization of values between the 14 townships and the cities of Escanaba and Gladstone. Last year Sup. Peter N. Logan of Escanaba, who also voted against the equalization committee's report this year, appealed to the commission, which reviewed the valuations and equalized them for the county.

Following the appeal by Sup. Paquin this year, the state tax commission will study the county's equalization and determine whether there are sufficient grounds for it to come in. If there is the state will equalize valuations and hold a hearing with the county board. The state's equalized valuations are in effect for one year only.

Menominee To Get 4-H Club Agent

Menominee, Mich.—Menominee county is to get a full-time 4-H Club agent. County Agricultural Agent Gail E. Bowers said that Lester H. Walcutt, formerly of East Jordan, Mich., has been assigned to Menominee county by Orville Walker, of Marquette, U. P. 4-H club director.

The new agent will take over all 4-H Club organization work and activities, much of which had been handled in the past by Miss Mary Muller, home demonstration agent, and Bowers.

He will spend the next two weeks in southern Michigan on special 4-H Club work and will come to Menominee then to assume his duties.

GUARD RIGHTS, SPEAKER URGES

Keep Alert To Political Trends, Lions Club Is Told

Members of the Escanaba Lions club were called upon last night at their regular weekly meeting to give heed to the affairs of government, state and national, and to exercise their rights as free men to see to it that our democratic form of government is kept on the base of popular sovereignty, by Mr. Rolland E. Fisher, assistant executive director of the Michigan Survey. As an indication of their interest in government and what it is doing, Mr. Fisher urged the members of the Escanaba Lions club to keep in touch with officials of government at all levels that they may have a voice in the affairs of government and that the officials may have a better idea how the taxpayer feels about matters pertinent to his interests.

"Civic consciousness means a realization of civic responsibility and civic stewardship," Mr. Fisher reminded his audience. "It means that we must be alert to all those things which tend to undermine and destroy the freedoms of our democratic form of government."

"We have won great military battles on the European and Pacific fronts. Our returning men and women of arms are rightfully being accorded the honors that are due them for such sacrifices and achievements. But to what are they returning? An America of peace, harmony and brotherly love? Or an America wracked with domestic pains and ills caused from jealousy, selfishness and greed? Have they given the best years of their lives; have they given of their bodies; have they thousands of them given of their lives that others may return to a nation on the verge of internal upheaval?"

Country Needs Builders
"The service that you render to your community, state or nation by inculcating civic stewardship in the people with whom you come in contact is one of the most important jobs you have to do today. It is not enough to be just talking about it. It isn't enough to be just doing it. It must be done with an eye to building for the future. It must be done constructively."

"Builders—not wreckers. That is what this country needs today. Men who serve, not for the personal glory, not for the monetary gain, but men who serve and build that they may transmit this country, not less, but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to them."

The speaker then expanded his idea about government and pointed out the enormity of government today and the apathy of the taxpayer. He said, "Government today, state or national, is the largest fiscal unit in the world. In a sense, it is like a large corporation. The board of directors, responsible for determination of policy, is the congress or legislature. The executive, charged with carrying out this policy, is the president of the United States, or the governor. Its stockholders are citizens and taxpayers who, by taxes or loans, provide means of support for vast domestic and foreign operations."

"As a monopoly, the federal government and, in some instances, the state governments, differ from private corporations which must meet competition profitably in order to survive. Governments can tax their stockholders at any time to recoup losses from operations. In government there is no automatic penalty for inefficiency. Government can be cumbersome, duplicating and wasteful as long as its leaders permit and taxpayers are willing to bear the burdens imposed upon them."

Red Cross Gray Ladies are serving 1,202 federal and civilian hospitals.

ENDING OF OPA HAS NO EFFECT

Retail Stores Continue
To Charge 'Ceiling'
Prices Here

Watchful waiting marked the local reaction in the first day of OPA - less prices. The general tendency is summed up by one grocer, who said, "I'm waiting to see."

Meanwhile the price control board was open, but very quiet. Instructions to the local board read, "All boards will remain open as usual pending further congressional action." Since the board is stripped of all legal authority, its tasks were few and routine.

Grocers, still short of many commodities such as meat and butter, continued to charge OPA ceiling prices. Most groceries will charge old rates unless they receive price increases from their wholesalers that necessitate boosting the retail prices.

One merchant expressed the belief that prices may be used for awhile but if the public does not go on a panic buying spree, they will level off and come down.

Hoarders are not common although a rumored price increase has caused added coffee sales. The buying public continues to grab for soap and soap flakes whenever they make rare appearances.

Some rationing and slaughter control programs remain in effect. Car and truck owners must continue to show either the No. 29 stamp, the No. 9 stamp, or the No. 10 green stamp when buying. The No. 10 stamp became valid yesterday.

Report Car Stolen On Ludington Street

Officers throughout the Escanaba area yesterday were on the watch for a 1939 Dodge sedan owned by Ivan Stromberg of Iron Mountain, which was reported stolen early Sunday evening from where it was parked in the 1500 block, Ludington street.

Escanaba police said Stromberg reported the car as greenish-black in color, a four-door sedan, bearing license No. NH 25-83.

Two minor accidents also were reported to police over the week-

Defense Against Atom Bomb Attacks Urged In Report Of U.S. Experts

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, (AP)—A far-reaching plan for defense against atom bomb attack, including wide dispersal of industry and the armed forces, shelters for the populace, and sturdier buildings, was urged tonight by civilian experts who sized up for President Truman what the bomb did to Japan.

From the rubble of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the U. S. strategic bombing survey constructed a warning that "the danger is real" and the United States must get ready "now" to meet an atomic attack.

Calling for an "unrelaxing state of readiness," it recommended specifically:

The "dispersal, concealment, protection and constant readiness" of all military forces, so no single blow or series of them can cripple their ability to fight back.

Shelters to protect the people against blast, flash burns and radiation—the three main causes of death and injury in atomic warfare.

Sturdier buildings, a national civilian defense, reserves of critical supplies and equipment, the scattering of industrial and medical facilities, and ready-made plans to evacuate cities.

The strategic bombing survey was set up under the late President Roosevelt to appraise the effects of air attack on Germany. President Truman asked it to do the same in Japan.

The report tonight dealt only with the impact of the two atom bombs on Japan last August. It was drafted under the chairmanship of Franklin D'Olier, Newark, N. J., insurance company executive.

end. Harold Anderson of 224 Stephenson avenue reported that a hit and run car damaged a front fender of his car yesterday morning while his car was parked in front of his home; and police reported that cars driven by W. R. Eckmeyer of 1500 First avenue south and Frank A. Bender of Escanaba Rt. 1 collided at Ludington and 15th streets on Sunday.

five who was an army officer in World War I.

A parallel report on the identical subject was released simultaneously by the agency which developed the A-bomb—the War Department's Manhattan project directed by Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves.

Both studies tended to dispel the bugaboo that some deaths were due to radioactivity lingering in the target areas. But the civilians said that phase of the story might have been "ominously" different had the bombs exploded at ground level instead of several hundred feet in the air.

The Army said preliminary reports that the first atom bomb packed roughly the punch of 20,000 tons of TNT were about right.

The strategic bombing survey was much more conservative. It figured that the charges in 2100 tons of high explosive, incendiary and anti-personnel fragmentation bombs would have done the trick at Hiroshima. And that would allow for the usual percentage of bombs falling outside the target area.

The two documents sketched vividly how the atom bombs were loosed, the holocaust and terror that followed, and the hastening of Japan's surrender. Both described the nature of an atomic explosion—without spilling any secrets—and the type of damage and casualties that resulted.

The Army said the approximate date for the first atomic bomb blast was picked in the fall of 1942. The targets were selected with these factors in mind:

Range of aircraft, desirability of visual bombing, weather conditions, nearness of secondary targets (Nagasaki was a secondary objective), military effect on the Japanese people and the shortening of the war, and morale effect on the enemy.

Only the civilian report translated the picture of atomic destruction into grim terms of what it means to America. It said: "The danger is real—of that, the survey's findings leave no doubt."

But it added that the findings supply clues to measures that could cut casualties and damage to a minimum. Despite its awesome power, it said, the atom bomb "has limits of which wise planning will take prompt advantage."

The report pointed to how some concrete and steel shells survived near the centers of the bomb blasts, and to how 400 people were saved in a Nagasaki shelter.

"Without question," the civilian experts declared, "shelters can protect those who get to them against anything but a direct hit."

Pointing up their support for the old formula of not putting all the eggs in one basket, they noted that industries on the outskirts of both target cities suffered small damage whereas medical facilities concentrated in the middle of the towns were all but wiped out.

The survival of sheltered sections of Nagasaki, cut up by hills and valleys, suggests the use that can be made of irregular terrain, the report said.

While there is "reason to hope" for better protective weapons and techniques, the survey said, there can be no perfect guards against the atomic weapon. Thus, the mission of defense, it said, is "to prevent the surprise use of the atomic bomb from being decisive."

"One further measure of safety must accompany the others," it added. "To avoid destruction, the surest way is to avoid war. X X X No more forceful arguments for peace and for the international machinery of peace than the sight of the devastation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki have ever been devised."

FISHER SPEAKS ON PUBLIC DEBT

Kiwanians Hear Address
By Michigan Survey
Official

The enormity of the national debt and its relation to Michigan and Escanaba was brought forcefully home Monday when Roland E. Fisher, Assistant executive director of the Michigan Public Expenditure Survey cited facts and figures to illustrate the points upon our national debt and Escanaba pro rata share in his address before the Escanaba Kiwanis at their regular weekly meeting.

In speaking about the enormity of the national debt and its effects upon business and commerce, Mr. Fisher said, "A false impression was immediately created by the president's budget message that the public debt will decrease by several billion dollars during the next eighteen months." To accomplish this so-called "reduction," he went on, "the cash balance in the federal treasury will be reduced from $26 billion as of January 1, 1946 to an all-time low of $3.2 billion on June 30, 1947. It is always possible to reduce a debt by taking away needed reserves to do so. The only way to decrease the net debt and to provide needed economy is through a reduction of non-essential expenditures and a balancing of our federal budget," the speaker said.

"We have a near $280 billion debt facing us. Escanaba pro rata share of the national debt is $44,260,522, or 5 times as great as her total taxable valuation of $9,222,515.

"It is 521 times as great as the general city debt of $85,000.

"It is over 117 times greater than the net school debt of $375,850.

"Escanaba's pro rata share of the national debt is the equivalent of $121,262 per day for 365 days.

"Escanaba pro rata share of interest on the national debt is $618,868 or seven times as great as the net city debt.

"It is nearly double her net school debt.

"Escanaba's pro rata share of interest on the national debt is the equivalent of $1,695 per day for 365 days.

"Here are a few of the things Escanaba could do with its share of the national debt:

"1. Pay off the net city debt in less than one day; or

"2. Pay off the net school debt in less than three days; or

"3. Operate its city government for 138 years; or

"4. Operate its public school system for 176 years."

Continuing with his remarks concerning Escanaba and the national debt, Mr. Fisher said, "Here are a few of the things Escanaba could do with its share of the national debt interest:

"1. Pay off the net city in about two months; or

"2. Pay off the net school debt in seven months; or

"3. Operate the city for almost two years; or

"4. Operate the public school system for two and one half years."

"Escanaba's pro rata share of Federal employees," the speaker stressed, "in the executive branch amounts to 498 persons, yet this city requires only 248 full-time city and school employees to operate its city government and public school system."

Still emphasizing the enormity of the national debt, the speaker directed the attention of his audience to its relationship to the state of Michigan. He said, "Michigan contains only 3.2 per cent of the total United States population, yet nearly 6 per cent of all federal taxes are collected within her boundaries.

"In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1944, the state of Michigan's production of federal taxes was $2,370,646,239.

"All expenses of Michigan's state government could be paid for more than ten years with the money produced in our state for 1944 federal taxes. The administrative, operational and capital outlay costs of our state government (excluding state aid) could be paid for more than 27 years with the same amount of money. "Michigan's total public debt, which included total not indebtedness of all units of government in the state, is $451,141,846 or $8 per person or $18 per employed person.

"Our national debt is near $280 billion.

"Michigan's tax-ratio share of the national debt is $15,262,249,057, or $2,826 per person or $6,105 per every employed person."

OPA EXTENSION SOUGHT BY AFL

Union Delegates From
U. P. Urge Action
Here On Sunday

OPA EXTENSION

Adoption of a resolution urging Michigan senators and congressmen to continue the Office of Price Administration in its original form was included in business to come before an organizational conference of 52 delegates representing AFL union locals from every city in the Upper Peninsula held in Escanaba Sunday.

The OPA went out of existence midnight Sunday following sustaining of a veto by the president of a compromise bill, and failure on the part of congress to continue OPA by resolution.

The resolution drafted by the AFL delegates from major towns in the Upper Peninsula directed attention to the threat of uncontrolled price increases and inflation, and included the provision that attention of legislators be directed to the need for continuing OPA. Telegrams were to be sent to Michigan senators and congressmen.

Purpose of the preliminary conference was to pave the way for regular quarterly conferences, of which the next will be held Aug. 4. At the meeting Sunday, held in Carpenters Union hall, and organizational committee of four was selected, and election of officers will be held at the next meeting. The committee is composed of Fred Lachapell, Escanaba, chairman; Dexter Clark, Marquette, secretary; John Thompson, Sault Ste. Marie, publicity; Robert Dorow, Marquette, treasurer; Dorow is also third vice president of the Michigan State Federation of Labor.

A 12-point program was adopted and will be sent to all AFL unions in the Upper Peninsula for approval. Other business included establishment of an organizational committee in all U. P. cities; educational classes for union members in Escanaba and Sault Ste. Marie starting next fall similar to those held in Marquette last fall and winter; and a proposal to establish an AFL union newspaper for U. P. locals was also included in the program being submitted to the locals for approval.

Besides the resolution urging extension of OPA, the union delegates drafted another resolution calling on Michigan senators and congressmen urging legislation providing for reforestation in the Upper Peninsula to aid in protecting the economic future of the citizens in this area.

Lt. Joe Connor, Cloquet, Minn., former world champion and a favorite with local birlers enthusiasts since his appearance in Gladstone in 1941 at which time he battled with Jimmie Herron for the championship has informed Billy Girard that he will be unable to come to Gladstone this year.

Following the closing of his assignment at Welch Convalescent hospital at Daytona Beach, Fla., he will leave for duty in the Pacific. He is looking forward to getting together with top-flight birlers of the nation in 1947 to vie for the title of King of the White Waters.

OPEN WEDNESDAY

Because of the usual July 4th closing business houses will remain open all day Wednesday, instead of closing for the afternoon as has been common practice for the past several years.

Mark Olson, Marquette, junior champion, is a private first class in the army and is now taking a special course of instruction at Fort Monmouth, N. J., which will not permit of a furlough until completed. While he would not be eligible to compete for the junior title because of age he expresses regret that he cannot be here to appear in other events.

The National Amateur Roleo and Water Festival to be held here Thursday through Saturday, July 4-6, however, will have a representative group of birlers in all of the events.

Assurance that a group of Minnesota swimmers will be here and that competitive events with the Michigan champions from Arthur Hill high school, Saginaw, will be on the program has been received by D. A. Mathison, general chairman of the event.

Among the Minnesota swimmers, mainly from Minneapolis, will be Tommy Thompson, who appeared here two years ago, Dave Anderson, Chuck Swisher, Rodney Grubb and Terry Hollien.

Anderson is in his first year of high school competition, swims for Marshal high school, and holds the state AAU record for the 50 yard free style for boys 14 and under in a time of 26.5 seconds. While only 14 now he usually swims against older competition. Finishing touches are now being put on the aquacade which is being directed by Nancy Grubb and Barbara Steichen of Minneapolis and Joyce Davis of this city.

Lumberjacks Have
Fine Swim Record

Although swimming as an interscholastic sport has been carried on at Saginaw Arthur Hill high school during the past four years, the Hillites have compiled a record second to none in scholastic swimming circles in the United States.

Swimmers of this school will appear in Gladstone during the Roleo and Water Festival, July 4-6.

After a mediocre initial season, during which the Hill nators and their coach gained a world of valuable experience, Arthur Hill teams over the past three years have won 27 out of 29 dual meets, copping their last 14 in a row. Only losses during this period were to the Detroit Boys Club, an all-star aggregation composed of swimmers from all Detroit high schools, in 1944, and a 44-40 defeat by Battle Creek during the 1944-45 season. The Lumberjacks avenged this defeat by the same margin in a return meet at Saginaw.

The Hills have won the Saginaw Valley swimming title for the past three years and have copped state championships the past two seasons, no state meet being held in 1944.

In 1945 Arthur Hill tied for the national high school championship, members of the National Interscholastic Swimming Coaches Association rating Arthur Hill and Roosevelt high of Des Moines, Iowa, as the No. 1 teams in the nation.

Members of the 1945 aggregation swimming under the colors of the Saginaw Junior Board of Commerce, placed third in the National AAU meet held at the New York Athletic Club. Among the teams which the Arthur Hill youngsters faced on this occasion were Bainbridge Naval Academy, which finished first; Ohio State, which placed second; and Columbia Midshipmen's School, which rated fourth place.

Stars in the meet included top names in swimming over the past decade. Among them were Adolph Kiefer, Bainbridge Naval Academy, recognized as the greatest back-stroker of all time; Alan Ford, former Yale star, 50 and 100 yard free style world record holder, who performed for the Midshipmen; and Keo Nakama, Ohio State's Hawaiian ace, who is a champion in the distances.

Gainey's 1945 crew included three boys who earned All-American ratings: Dick Weinberg in the 50 and 100 yard free style, Howard Patterson, second in the 100 yard back stroke, and Bob Beckman, rated fourth in the back stroke. It also included the national high school 400 yard free style relay championship team of which Jack Waddell, captain of this year's team, was a member. Both Beckman and Waddell will appear at Gladstone during the Roleo. In the same season the Arthur Hill 150 yard medley relay team was ranked third best in the nation, while the 200 yard free style relay team rated tops in the country.

Since that opening practice session in 1942 when 13 boys turned out, interest in the sport has increased to such an extent that 80 candidates reported this season and 120 boys are already signed up for next year.

The Lumberjacks record of two consecutive state titles and three Valley championships becomes more remarkable in view of the fact that the boys do not have their own pool for practice purposes. The only pool available in the city is located at the YMCA, where the boys are allotted two hours per day from October through February. The Y pool is also used for all home meets.

At present Arthur Hill holds four of eight Michigan high school swimming records including the 50 and 100 yard free style, 100 yard back stroke and 200 yard free style relay. Hillite nators also hold 21 pool records in various pools throughout the state.

TOURIST RUSH
BEGAN SUNDAYFourth Of July Week
Rush Is Greatest
In Many Years

Warnings freely circulated in Lower Michigan to avoid the north country because of an alleged inability of resort areas to take care of the public needs, has evidently been unheeded.

Sunday's vanguard of tourists was the biggest this area has seen in years.

In spite of the rain that dripped almost incessantly throughout Sunday, the number of visitors at the Big Spring, according to actual count kept by the management, was over 700. Hotel Ossa had to find accommodations for guests at other hotels in the city and at Indian Lake Park, where improved facilities for the accommodation of campers have been made in the past few months there were thirty tents and trailers installed Sunday. In this respect the largest number of campers at any one time in the past few years was 17.

This rush is ascribed to the fact that this is Fourth of July week which is always a rush period in the tourist business. The influx, however, is greater than it was during the war years and indicates an unprecedented amount of tourist business for the season.

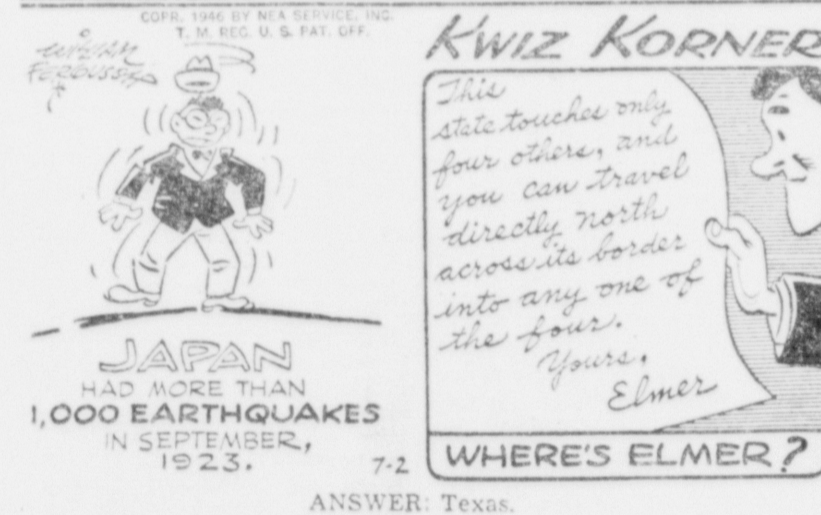

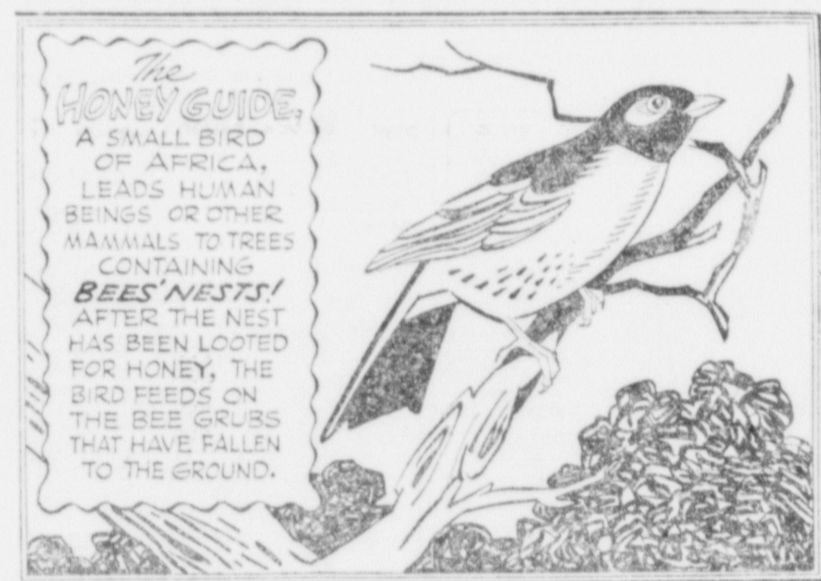

To help take care of the rush during the present week resorts are asked to inform the Manistique Tourist Information Bureau of vacancies available. This would greatly facilitate the accommodation of tourists and also avoid any possibility of a rush that cannot be taken care of.

Boyd, Manistique; thirty - two grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 at the Morton Funeral Home with the Rev. G. A. Herbert officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Atom Bomb Cloud Travels Fast

The "lethal cloud" of radioactive matter released by the atomic bomb explosion at Bikini will travel at approximately 10,000 feet a minute, soaring 60,000 feet to the stratosphere in from 6 to 10 minutes after the explosion, according to Col. B. G. Holzman, Army Air Forces weather forecaster for "Operation Crossroads." Chart estimates progress of cloud until it is dissipated in the stratosphere.

CHILD STRUCK
BY MOTORISTCarol Ann Bloom In Marquette Hospital
With Broken Leg

Carol Ann Bloom, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garth Bloom, 307 Oak street, was taken to St. Luke's hospital in Marquette for treatment of injuries received when hit by a car Friday evening.

Carol and a group of children were playing in the vicinity of St. Francis de Sales parochial school. The child ran out on the street directly in front of a pickup truck driven by Albert Hedberg, 235 Potter street. Hedberg was driving at a moderate speed and applied the brakes. The truck swerved slightly and struck the child.

Hedberg took the child to the Shaw hospital where it was found that the child was suffering from a broken leg and a number of bruises. None of the latter were regarded as serious.

The child was taken to Marquette where special facilities for giving children orthopedic treatment are provided.

Hedberg has been absolved of blame for the mishap.

WALKER BACK IN RUNNING

Mickey Vernon, Williams Neck and Neck In American

New York, July 1 (P)—Brooklyn's Dixie Walker is again today in the race for the National League batting title.

After trailing Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals last week, the pride of "Dem Bums" belted the ball all over the lot during the week which ended with Sunday's games and lifted his average 12 points from .362 to .374. Musial, meanwhile, slid into second place with a drop from .363 to .361.

Besides making 13 hits in 28 times at bat—hitting at a .464 clip—Walker took over the leads in runs batted in with a total of 55, tied with Musial for first place with seven triples and moved into second in total hits with 99. Musial's eight hits in 23 times up were good enough to keep him on top in the hit totals with 95. He also leads in two other departments with 48 runs and 21 doubles.

The Boston Braves' Johnny Hopp, who was pressing these two for the top spot a week ago, also slumped, getting five hits in 20 times at bat for an eleven point drop from .361 to .350. He retained third place, however, as Johnny Mize of New York, with five for 22, skidded from .344 to .334.

Profiting by the general batting slump, youthful Delmar Ennis of the Phillies and Eddie Waitkus of the Chicago Cubs moved into a fifth-place tie with .315 averages. A week ago Ennis was ninth at .310 and Waitkus wasn't even in the "Big Ten."

Chicago, July 1 (P)—Washington's fading Mickey Vernon and Boston's climbing Ted Williams were running almost neck-and-neck today in the American League batting race with percentages of .358 and .355 respectively.

Vernon, collecting 10 hits in 33 trips, slipped nine points during the week, while Williams picked up five points with 10 bingles in 35 appearances.

Dom Di Maggio of Boston moved into third place with a two-point climb to .335, followed by New York's Charley Keller with .328. Johnny Bernardino of St. Louis skidded nine points from third to fifth place with .326. Other leaders on figures computed through Sunday's games: Hank Edwards, Cleveland, .325; Bobby Doerr, Boston, and Vern Stephens, St. Louis, .317; Luke Appling, Chicago, .306; and Johnny Lewis, Washington, .301.

Williams moved into sole possession of the home run lead with 20 and kept ahead in runs with 71. Doerr rammed across 11 tallies to boost his runs-batted-in total to 67 and replaced Bernardino at the head of the hit parade with 91.

Vernon continued to lead in two-baggers with 22; George Case of Cleveland in stolen bases with 14; and Edwards in triples with seven.

Mickey Harris of Boston moved into the pitching leadership with an 11-2 record, while blazin' Bob Feller of Cleveland upped his strike-out total to 174 with 23 new victims.

BROWN BEATS CZECH STAR

Unknown Yankee Wins Way To Semi-Finals At Wimbledon

Wimbledon, July 1 (P)—America's Tom Brown, who came to the All-England Championships as inconspicuously as a carton or tennis balls and turned out to be a time bomb, smashed his way into the semi-finals of the historic tournament today with a straight set 6-2, 8-6, 6-4 victory over Ferenc Puscas, Yugoslav Davis Cup star.

The 23-year-old Californian will clash with Yvon Petra, six-foot, seven-inch French star, for the right to try the famous center court in Friday's final.

Petra, who was well known in the U. S. before the war, scored perhaps the greatest triumph of his career today in knocking out Dinny Pails of Australia, the tournament's No. 1 seeded player, 7-5, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Reaching the semi-finals in the opposite bracket were Geoff Brown, the ambidextrous Australian who was seeded No. 3, and Jaroslav Drobny, the Czech who earlier upset Second Seeded Jack Kramer of California. Brown eliminated Lennart Bergelin, Sweden's top star, 13-11, 11-9, 6-3, while Drobny ousted Pierre Pelizzola of France, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Following his victory over Puscas today, Brown teamed with Kramer to breeze into the third round of men's doubles with a 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 win over J. Siba and J. Vodička of Czechoslovakia.

CRYSTAL FALLS DEFEATS BEARS

Escanaba Drops 6 T 1 Decision In NWM

The Escanaba Bears lost a 6 to 1 decision to Crystal Falls before a small crowd of fans at Crystal Falls Sunday afternoon. It was the second victory for Crystal Falls over the Bears this season.

The Bears scored in the first inning on two hits and an error and were leading by that margin until the fourth when Crystal Falls scored three times. They added another in the fifth and two in the eighth.

Although they collected nine hits and had men on bases in virtually every frame, the Bears couldn't connect in the clinches after the first inning. A few bad breaks on umpires' decisions in crucial points of the game also were costly to the Escanaba team.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The Escanaba Bears learned a good lesson—the hard way—at Crystal Falls Sunday. Fred Gardner, the Escanaba umpire, missed the bus so the Bears had to hire an umpire at Crystal Falls which, in effect, gave the C.F. team two local men as arbiters of the Sunday game. The Bears didn't like either of them and went most of the afternoon protesting the umpires' decisions. The Escanaba club contends that it will be sure to carry a local umpire on all future trips. A similar situation occurred when the local club traveled to Iron River earlier in the season but the Bears had little cause to criticize on that occasion.

Two additional games in the NWM league were rained out Sunday—Negaunee at Niagara and Iron River at Channing—so all the clubs in the circuit except the Iron Kings have at least one postponed game to make up. Some teams have two postponed games to make up. The Escanaba Bears will catch up to the schedule Thursday, July 4, when they play at Channing. Two other league games are scheduled that day, Niagara at Iron Mountain and Crystal Falls at Iron River. The two games rained out Sunday will have to be made up later in the season.

CUBS LOSE TO MUNISING, 2-0

Game Delayed By Rain, Halted After 5 Innings Of Play

The Escanaba Cubs lost a five inning Rainbow league game to Munising, 2 to 0, on a rain soaked diamond Sunday afternoon. The game was delayed for three hours because of wet grounds and was limited to five innings by mutual agreement of the managers.

Both of the Munising runs were scored in the fifth inning when Chartrand's sharp single drove in baserunners from second and third.

The Cubs got only two men on base, one in the second on a walk and the other, Kuchenberg, on a scratch hit in the third.

California Golfer Wins Canadian Open

Montreal, July 1 (P)—After a three-hole finish in which they seemed to be trying to hand the title to each other, George Fazio of Los Angeles came through today to capture his first major golf event, the Canadian open championship, by beating veteran Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kas., by one stroke in an 18-hole playoff.

They had tied for the regulation 72 holes with scores of 278, ten under par. Over the Beaconsfield golf club course today, before a gallery of 1,000 Fazio shot a two-under-par 70, his fourth in five tours of the layout, to Metz's 71. First money was $2000 and the runner-up got $1,400.

The West End Juniors failed to make an appearance at the Junior High yesterday afternoon and therefore forfeited to Corbett's Corner. However, a team composed of Midget and Cadet players played a practice tilt with the Webster team, with Corbetts emerging as winners by a 20 to 9 score. Batteries for the game were as follows: Corbett's Corner—Provo and Kutches; West End Juniors—Schwallbach and Legault.

Yankee Power Too Much For Giants In Charity Game

New York, July 1 (P)—Old-time New York Yankee power asserted itself tonight as the Bronx Bombers defeated the New York Giants, 3-0, in a charity game before 27,486 at the Polo Grounds. Rookie Bill Wright, who blanked the Giants for the first six innings, benefitted from the Yankee barrage, featured by Tommy Hendrich's home run, to receive credit for the victory.

PIRATES TRIM CHICAGO CUBS

Sewell's Blooper Ball Takes 1-0 Decision Over Bruins

Chicago, July 1 (P)—The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago Cubs 1 to 0 today behind the four hit pitching of Rip Sewell.

Sewell, making only infrequent use of his famed blooper ball, walked only two batters, one intentionally.

Stan Hack was the only Cub to give Sewell any trouble. Twice the veteran Cub third baseman touched him for doubles. Hank Wyse, the losing pitcher, singled for the Cubs' third hit. Marv Rickert doubled for the Chicagoans' only other safety.

Pittsburgh scored the only run of the game, an unearned one, in the second. Billy Cox tripled, and scored when Lou Stringer, Cub second baseman, fumbled Bill Salkeld's roller.

Wyse allowed six hits in the eight innings he worked. Emil Kusch pitched a hitless ninth for the Cubs.

American Golfers Barely Qualify For British Open Play

BY VIC HACKLER
St. Andrews, Scotland, July 1 (P)—America's challengers for the British Open Golf championship looked pretty certain of qualifying tonight after first round tussles with St. Andrews' tricky courses—but they were far from spectacular.

Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot master and the one American professional here who was given little chance to win the cup, scored a 74, one over par, on the championship old course, three-putting the last green.

Sam Sneed duplicated the 74 score, but on the new course which was yielding considerably lower totals today. Lawson Little overshot the greens and three-putted frequently to rack up a 76 on the new course.

Johnny Bulla had serious putter trouble and went four over par to take a 77 on the old course where he was runner-up in the last British Open in 1939.

WITH ALL STARS
Chicago, July 1 (P)—Centers Merv Pregulman of Michigan and Herb Coleman of Notre Dame are the newest additions to the All-Star collegiate football squad which will tangle with the Los Angeles Rams Aug. 23 in the 13th game of the All-Star series.

PICK AMERICAN ALL STAR TEAM

Newhouser Is Only Tiger Selected On Squad

Chicago, July 1 (P)—Selection of a 25-player American League squad today for the All-Star game at Boston's Fenway Park on July 9 reflected unusual shortstop strength in the junior circuit and the collapse of the World Champion Detroit Tigers.

The Bengals landed only Hurlin' Hal Newhouser on the roster selected by the eight league managers, who grabbed eight players from the pace-setting Boston Red Sox. Missing from the All-Star array were such former Tiger picks as Hank Greenberg, Dick Wakefield and Birdie Tebbetts.

American League shortstop power is emphasized by the fact that Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland, who appeared in three previous All-Star games, failed to make the grade.

In preference to the cat-like Boudreau, the managers picked Luke Appling, the Chicago White Sox' only representative; Johnny Pesky of the Red Sox; and Vern Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, all boasting better hitting records than the Tribe pilot.

It was suspected, however, that Lou's own vote for Appling cost him an All-Star berth.

Six players will make their All-Star debuts, including Boston's Pesky and Pitches Dave (Boo) Ferris and Mickey Harris, Mickey Vernon of Washington, George Stinewiss of New York, Sam Chapman of Philadelphia and Jack Kramer of St. Louis.

The second-place New York Yankees placed six players, including Manager-Catcher Bill Dickey, named to the classic for the 11th time. Cleveland landed three, while Washington, St. Louis and Philadelphia won two berths each.

Among the 18 repeaters were Boston's Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Hal Wagner, Rudy York and Dom Di Maggio; Bobby Feller, Frankie Hayes and Ken Keltner of Cleveland; Joe Gordon, Joe Di Maggio, Charley Keller, Spud Chandler and Dickey of the Yankees; Stan Spence of Washington; Stephens of the Browns; Appling of the White Sox; Buddy Rosar of the A's, and Detroit's Newhouser.

Swedish Flyer To Try For New Mile Mark In Meet Today

New York, July 1 (P)—Lennart Strand, the little Swedish flyer who has found America's best middle distance runners a soft touch so far, will go gunning for Gunder Haegg's 4:01.4 mile mark tomorrow night in his farewell appearance in the U. S.

The blond, 25-year old linotype operator who prefers to run against his opponents rather than the stopwatch, will be opposed by Les MacMittell and Tommy Quinn, the New York duo who finished a distant two-three to him at San Antonio last week, in the featured event of the A. A. U.'s streamlined track and field meet at Randall's Island stadium.

Strand was clocked in 3:54.5, equivalent of a 4:12 mile, in capturing the national 1,500 meter title at San Antonio Saturday.

Seven other contests are listed for the short affair. The second feature will pit Elmore Harris, conqueror of Herb McKenley in the San Antonio 400 - yards, against his victim in a 300-yard run.

DETROITER KO'D

West Springfield, Mass., July 1 (P)—Elmer (Violent) Ray, 190, of Miami, Fla., floored Earl Lowman, 225, of Detroit, four times in the third round tonight before scoring a clean knockout at 2:01 of that session in a scheduled 10-round main bout before 4,300 at the dog track.

17,500 CROWD SEES CONTEST

Shutout Is Third This Year For Tiger Twirler

Detroit, July 1 (P)—Handcuffed by Fireballer Virgil Trucks with men on the bases, the Chicago White Sox left 11 runners stranded here today as the Detroit Tigers treated 17,528 twilight customers to a 2 to 0 shutout victory.

Trucks scattered seven Chicago hits in hanging up his ninth triumph and his third shutout of the season.

Detroit got nine hits off Joe Haynes, who went all the way for the Chisox, but only two of them made much difference.

Hank Greenberg's wind-blown double that eluded Taft Wright in left field scored Roger Cramer from first in the fifth inning and Roy Cullenbine accounted for the Tigers' other run in the sixth with his second homer of the year.

The Sox lost their best scoring chance in the second inning when Hal Trosky led off with a single and raced to third on Don Kolloway's drive to center but was called out for failing to touch second base.

Chicago put runners on second and third in the third inning, got another man to third in the fourth and filled the bases in the seventh but lacked the punch to get them home.

Before the game Mike Tresh, Chicago catcher whose home is in suburban Allen Park, Mich., was presented a radio by the Allen Park Kiwanis club.

Evers Out

The Tigers, opening an eight-game home stand against the American League's western clubs, played without the services of Outfielder Walter (Hoot) Evers, who is suffering from a cold; Third Baseman George Kell, still resting a lame leg, and Dick Wakefield, whose batting slump has brought him a rest on the bench. Anse Moore continued to play right field in place of Pat Mullin.

Cullenbine, filling in for Wakefield, got two of the Tigers' nine hits and Shortstop Eddie Lake also contributed two.

By whitewashing the White Sox, Detroit remained undefeated in four twilight games at home this year.

Manager Steve O'Neill named Paul (Dizzy) Trout to work Tuesday's game against the Sox, opposing Orval Grove.

HOME BUILDING HITS NEW PEAK

406,000 New Dwellings
Started; 34% Of Year's Goal

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Housing construction has hit its highest rate since the record building boom of 1925, National Housing Administrator, Wilson Wyatt reported tonight.

Some 406,000 dwellings of all types have been started this year, or 34 per cent of President Truman's 1946 goal of 1,200,000 homes for veterans, Wyatt's first formal report revealed.

"We have finished the steepest part of the long uphill climb to reach our goal of starting 2,700,000 houses and apartments by the end of 1947," he declared. "The fact that we have gone this far this quickly shows that we can reach our goal."

Cost Problem Serious
However, the whole low-cost phase of the drive is "seriously threatened," Wyatt said, by the precarious state of price control. NHA's new-home ceilings remain, but cannot be held if materials go sky high.

Of the total new homes started, private industry came through the "unusually good" showing of 268,000 conventional, or traditional houses and apartments, said the report on the first five months of the year.

The rest were conversions, temporary public housing-type trailers, and a few prefabricated dwellings. Wyatt called the building record, "the biggest spurge in history, after years of low production."

"The dollar value of housing under construction so far in 1946 amounts to $1,067,000,000 already in less than half the year, more than the entire 1945 total of $850,000,000," the report stated.

Because of shortages in materials and strikes in the steel, coal and lumber industries, Wyatt reported that the emergency housing drive is "just hitting its stride." He said the likelihood is strong for starting the rest of the 1,200,000 scheduled for 1946.

Building Time Longer
He cautioned against complacency in reading these production figures, pointing out that "starts" are not houses.

"Construction time, because of the materials shortage, appears to be lengthening," Wyatt warned. "Expanded materials production is necessary to reverse this trend."

Although half the 531,000 conventional-type homes so far authorized will sell for under $7,500 or rent under $60 most of them remain beyond the reach of the average ex-serviceman, Wyatt said. Only 35 percent will sell for less than $6,500. And Wyatt said a greater proportion should be built for rental.

Delay In Prefabs
Another disappointment has been the slow production of prefabricated houses. The necessity of tooling up for mass production was a drag at the beginning, and the acute shortage of plywood has held back those manufacturers who otherwise were ready to go.

Prefabs account for only 10,000 dwelling units of the 1946 tally. The rest of the shelter program breaks down as follows: New conventional houses started, 268,000; war housing set up for temporary pre-use, 69,000; old houses converted, 47,000; trailers, 12,000.

In addition, the housing expediter estimated that 253,000 families of veterans and of servicemen have been accommodated in public-financed housing, under the priority granted them by the government.

Output of building materials is increasing constantly, Wyatt said, but still greater increases are vital to bring the housing drive in sight of its goal. The recent cut in factory, store and office construction has helped notably, he said, in releasing scarce materials for residential use.

Manager Wergeles Wakes Up To Find It's All A Dream

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, July 1 (AP)—Wherein Mr. Wergeles finds that dreams can be wonderful, but the awakening nothing but mental cramps.

The telephone rang. It was Chick Wergeles, manager of record of Beau Jack, the shoe shine boy who made good as a prize fighter because of the polish he carries in his fists.

Mr. Wergeles was as excited as a kid at a cowboy and Indian picture, and as enthusiastic.

He had heard that Ray Robinson had suffered a broken hand in a recent bout and might not be able to go through with a welterweight championship contest with titleholder Marty Servo.

"Put out a big story," he urged. "Beau Jack gets the, but with Servo if Robinson can't fight, Nat Rogers told me that a long time ago."

"What a bout that would be," here Chick paused momentarily to find words which would describe such a meeting. He couldn't think of stupendous and colossal, but in his own quaint way he did all right.

"That would pack any ball park," he finally continued. "It would have the fans jumping and howling their heads off. It would be gigantic, a natural. The boys are the same size—the same weight and the same height and everything. It would be the perfect match."

Here Chick paused again, and you got the idea that the vision of such an epic battle, not to mention that neat little gate involved, had quite overwhelmed him. During the interlude we casually mentioned that Servo, who had asked for postponement of an earlier title defense against Robinson because of a nose injury, must engage in no other bouts until he met Sugar Ray.

"I know, I know," Chick sputtered, "but if Robinson can't fight, Beau Jack gets the match, see?"

It readily was understood that Chick hoped that anything that might have happened to Robinson's hands was nothing trivial. Not that he wished Ray any bad luck, understand. He wouldn't want Robinson's hands to be permanently crippled. Just for a while, long enough for Beau Jack to get in on that juicy purse and a chance for the title.

A little later Al Weill called. Al manages Servo. He was quite as enthusiastic about a Servo-Jack meeting as was Chick.

Al's contention is that Servo should be allowed tuneup bouts before meeting such a formidable opponent as Robinson, and as Robinson is able to fight his way into condition it does seem only fair that Servo be given the same opportunity. However, the commission said no.

P. S.—The next morning Mike Jacobs announced that Servo and Robinson had signed for a title bout Aug. 21 at Yankee stadium.

Heart Attack On Monday Is Fatal
To Henry Barboo

Henry O. Barboo, 63, died suddenly following a heart attack Monday afternoon at his home, 1318 Ludington street. He had been in good health following his recovery from a recent leg injury and his death was quite unexpected.

The deceased was born in Egg Harbor, Wis., and had been employed by the Bay de Noc Lumber company for many years.

He is survived by four sons and two daughters, Marin of Escanaba, Henry E. and Oliver of Detroit, Richard of Scott Field, Ill.; Mrs. John (Pearl) Stanley of Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Stanley (Violet) Erickson, Bark River Route One.

The body is being prepared for burial at the Alto funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

The presentations were made by Bert Young following a report by Lindsay on the Rotary International convention at Atlantic city which he attended last month. The 143rd district includes the Upper Peninsula and Northern Wisconsin, and Lindsay is the first district governor to be elected from Escanaba. Other officers of the Escanaba club are Carl G. One Upset Marks
Opening Round Of Clay Court Tourney

River Forest, Ill., July 1 (AP)—Joe Woolfson of San Francisco State college turned in the biggest upset to date in the National Clay Courts Tennis tournament today by defeating highly-regarded Tom Falkenberg of Los Angeles—brother of the newly crowned NCAA champion, Bob—3-6, 11-9, 7-5.

Seeded Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., beat Erwin Schulze of Chicago, 6-1, 6-4, in the first round and another seeded veteran, Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, downed Sam Match of Los Angeles 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. Leslie Longshore of Anniston, Ala., who had previously upset Dick Mouldous, the boys' national champion from New Orleans, was eliminated in the second round by Tom Molloy of Panama City, Fla., 6-2, 6-1.

The defending champion, Billy Talbert of Wilmington, Del., took an easy first round match from Bill Friestad of Berkeley, Cal., 6-1, 6-2, after arriving in Chicago by plane from the Davis Cup zone match at South Orange, N. J.

Talbert is second seeded in the tourney to Frankie Parker, who was expected momentarily with other Davis Cuppers from a United States victory over Mexico at South Orange, N. J.

Alejo Russell, Argentina's top ranking star, and Felicissimo Ampon and Cesar Carmona of the Philippines Davis Cup team, also breezed to first round victories.

Russell whipped Gene Vash, Chicago, 6-1, 6-4, while Ampon measured H. J. Dupont, Neenah, Wis., 6-0, 6-0, and Carmona turned back Ben Weil, Corpus Christi, Tex., 6-4, 7-5.

Clarence Mabry, Alice, Tex., registered an upset by spilling Francisco Areocha of Mexico, ranked eighth in the foreign seeding, 7-5, 6-3. Another foreign contender, Brenden Macken, Montreal, Can., sixth in the outside seeding, was stopped by Ed Alao, San Francisco, 6-2, 6-4.

Other seeded players found comparatively easy pickings. Sixth-ranked Gayle Kellogg, La Jolla, Cal., downed Jack Blanton, and as enthusiastic.

He had heard that Ray Robinson had suffered a broken hand in a recent bout and might not be able to go through with a welterweight championship contest with titleholder Marty Servo.
